

Contents

List of Contributors — IX

Emily Hanscam and James Koranyi

Digging Politics: The Ancient Past and Contested Present — 1

Bogdan C. Iacob

Balkan Antiquity as Decolonial Eurocentrism During the Cold War — 17

Florian-Jan Ostrowski

Thracian Archaeology and National Identity in Communist Bulgaria:
The Ideological Pattern of Museum Exhibitions — 45

Christoph Doppelhofer

Imagining King's Landing: Dubrovnik, the Diegetic Heritage of Game of Thrones, and the Imperialism of Popular Culture — 77

Anne Kluger

Slavic Archaeology as “A Special Obligation”? Researching the Early Slavs in Communist Poland and East Germany — 107

Matthias E. Cichon

Allies out of Ashes? Polish Ideas for the Refounding of Medieval Western Slavic States after 1945 — 131

Melinda Harlov-Csortán

Roman Heritage in Hungary: The Case of the Fertőrákos Mithraeum on the Iron Curtain — 157

Katrin Kremmler

‘Eurasian Magyars’: The Making of a New Hegemonic National Prehistory in Illiberal Hungary — 181

Radu Cinpoeş

Beyond Radical Right Politics: LGBTQ+ Rights in Hungary and Romania — 217

Claudia Spiridon-Şerbu

The Protochronistic Depiction of the Transylvanian Saxons in Nicolae Ceaușescu's History Textbooks (1976–1989) — 241

Alexander Rubel

Dacian Blood: Autochthonous Discourse in Romania during the Interwar Period — 257

Gheorghe Alexandru Niculescu

Why Nationalism Survives in Romanian Archaeology and What Could Limit its Impact — 287

Emily Hanscam

Archaeology and the Challenge of Continuity: East-Central Europe during the Age of Migrations — 307

Index — 347