

TABLE OF CONTENTS

|                                                                                                                                                                                                 |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| A Book for Tony Birley                                                                                                                                                                          | IX  |
| ROMAN BRITAIN                                                                                                                                                                                   |     |
| Andrew Birley, Boxing for the Roman Empire, the Gloves are Off                                                                                                                                  | 3   |
| John Wilkes, The Britannia of Claudius: 'Iusti Triumphi Decus' or 'Pretium Victoriae'? Personal Glory or Taxes and Army Pay: the Motivation for Conquest?                                       | 17  |
| Tiziana Carboni, Ufficiali equestri in Britannia                                                                                                                                         | 31  |
| David Breeze, The Status of the Commanding Officer at Maryport                                                                                                                                  | 43  |
| Oliver Stoll, " A Band of Brothers ". Bierdurst und Heimathunger. Essen und Trinken und die Frage nach der Regimentsidentität römischer Truppeneinheiten in den Grenzzonen des Imperiums | 57  |
| Marie-Thérèse Raepsaet-Charlier, Quelques réflexions à propos de l'onomastique des soldats bataves de Vindolanda                                                                         | 75  |
| Roger Tomlin, Latin Dressed Up as Greek: Deciphering a Curse against Theft in Roman Britain                                                                                                     | 95  |
| EMPERORS AND EMPRESSES                                                                                                                                                                          |     |
| Mary Boatwright, The Missing familia of Agrippina the Younger                                                                                                                            | 107 |
| Gian Luca Gregori – Antonio Romano, Domiziano: memoria "dannata" o rispettata? Una riflessione sulla documentazione epigrafica di Roma                                                          | 117 |
| Konrad Vössing, Tunc... haec feci (Plin. Epist 3,11) – noch einmal zur Datierung von Plinius' Prätur                                                                                     | 131 |
| Everett L. Wheeler, Verus' Parthian War: Some Notes on Recent Work                                                                                                                              | 147 |
| Michael Speidel, Caracalla in Thrace and the Beginning of His Parthian War                                                                                                                      | 161 |
| José Remesal Rodríguez, Septimius Severus and the Supply of Rome. A Debated Issue                                                                                                               | 173 |
| ADMINISTRATIVE AND MILITARY HISTORY OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE                                                                                                                                         |     |
| Lawrence Keppie, Consular Legions in the Late Republic                                                                                                                                          | 187 |
| John Rich, The Fasti of Amiternum and the End of the Civil Wars                                                                                                                                 | 199 |
| Edward Dabrowa, The Diplomatic Activity of the Governors of Syria                                                                                                                               | 211 |
| Werner Eck, Iudaea/Syria Palaestina und seine militärische Besatzung: ein Beispiel für römische Realpolitik?                                                                                    | 223 |

|                                                                                                                                                       |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Giuseppe Camodeca, La carriera di [- - - Cicat ] ricula Sent ] [ ius - - -]                                                      | 237 |
| console sotto Domiziano in una iscrizione inedita reimpiegata a Salerno                                                                               |     |
| J. C. N. Coulston, The Columns of Trajan and Marcus Aurelius:a Tale of Two Monuments                                                              | 249 |
| Antonio F. Caballos Rufino, The Municipal Promotion of Carmo and ItsEarly Élite                                                            | 263 |
| Paul Holder, Some Roman Military Diploma Fragments Found in Ukraine                                                                                   | 275 |
| Lukas de Blois, The Emperor Gallienus and the Senate. Administrative andMilitary Reform in the Roman Empire of the Mid-Third Century AD           | 289 |
| Benet Salway, Roman Governors and Government of Asia Minor in theThird Century AD: Recent Developments                                            | 297 |
| Péter Kovács, Amissio Illyrici . The ‘Loss of Illyricum’ in the Fifth Century                                                                  | 313 |
| Ioan Piso – Anja Ragolič, Harietto und Dagalaifus in Emona. Ein Beitragzur Geschichte des spätrömischen Heeres                                    | 327 |
| Elizabeth Meyer, Practice, Emperors, and the Mechanics of Testaments                                                                                  | 337 |
|                                                                                                                                                       |     |
| ANCIENT AND MODERN Historiography                                                                                                                     |     |
| A. J. Woodman, Problems in Tacitus, Annals 16                                                                                                  | 351 |
| Federico Santangelo, Hadrian’s Libri Vitae Suae : Two Problems                                                                                 | 363 |
| Bruno Bleckmann, Die Geschichte der Antonine in der Chronik desEusebios: quellenkritische Beobachtungen                                           | 371 |
| Silvia Orlandi, “Scavando nelle carte”. Un provvedimento imperialerelativo agli spettacoli noto da un documento d’archivio dellafine dell’800 | 385 |
| Gustavo García Vivas, El consejero imperial en Syme. Tres textossignificativos                                                                    | 399 |
| Péter Prohászka, Sir Ronald Syme und András Alföldi – Aus derKorrespondenz von zwei Alterthumsforschern vor dem ZweitenWeltkrieg              | 413 |
| K. R. Bradley, Five Exquisite Lines                                                                                                                   | 429 |
| J. R. Lendon, A. R. Birley and His Emperors                                                                                                           | 441 |
|                                                                                                                                                       |     |
| ANTHONY R. BIRLEY, BIBLIOGRAPHY 1961–2020                                                                                                             | 453 |
|                                                                                                                                                       |     |
| INDEX LOCORUM                                                                                                                                         | 479 |
| INDEX PERSONARUM                                                                                                                                      | 491 |