

Table of Contents

Introduction	7
Section I: Architectures of Lesser Means, 1949–1954	19
Bootstrapping Modernism:
Hans Schwippert's Bundeshaus in Bonn	21
“A Yearning for the Workshop, the Construction Site, the Finished Work”: Sep Ruf's Akademie der Bildenden Künste, Nuremberg	57
Job Books	95
Section II: Theories and Ethics, 1951 and 1953	105
Space Reconsidered:
The Second of the Darmstädter Gespräche	107
“Harassed by Worldview”:
The Bauhaus Debate	129
UC	151
Section III: Modesty and Internationalism, 1953–1958	161
“The World of the Little Man”:
The West German Pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair	163
“New, Clean, and Spectacular”: The Allure of American Architecture in West Germany and the Influence of Skidmore, Owings and Merrill	181
The Ruf Family Archive	209
Section IV: Architectures of Greater Means, 1956–1964	219
An Architecture of Civil Service: Sep Ruf's Hochschule für Verwaltungswissenschaften, Speyer	221
“To Stand for Uncorrupted Form Where Corrupted Form Fills the Market”: Hans Schwippert's Renovation of the Hedwigskathedrale in Berlin	251
Construction Drawings	283
Conclusions:
Year Zero, Verso	295
Bibliography	305
Index	312
Abbreviations, Image Credits	316