

Table of Contents

Chapter 1

Settler Responsibilities beyond Reconciliation 9

1. Research in the Era of Reconciliation 9

2. Locating the Self as a Researcher 22

3. Presenting the Research 27

4. Outline of the Dissertation 29

Chapter 2

Acceptations of “Indigenous Education”: Situating the Research 32

1. As Social Practice and Academic Discipline 32

2. Canadian-Settler Education for Indigenous People 34

3. Endogenous Indigenous Education 35

4. Critical Approaches 38

5. Settler-colonial Studies 45

Chapter 3

Historical, Institutional, and Racial Contexts 51

1. Education as an Instrument of Colonization 51

2. Federal or Provincial Schools? 58

3. A Portrait of South Manitoban Communities 66

Chapter 4

Methodological Choices and Considerations 79

1. Ethical and Relational Accountability in Practice 79

2. Narrowing Down the Research Field, Problem, and Question 84

3. Grounded Theory Methodology 88

4. From Recruiting Participants to Generating and Analysing Data 95

Chapter 5

The Story of the School through Educators’ Voices 105

1. Pivotal Events 105

2. Personal and Collective Learning Journeys 115

3. Issues at Play in the School 128

4. Finding Solutions: Towards a School-based Community 144

Chapter 6

Educators’ Perspectives and Critical Considerations 155

1. From Meaning to Practices 158

2. A Progress Narrative 166

3. What Changed? 169

4. Practices of Disruption and Reproduction 173

Conclusion 182

1. Summary of the Chapters 182

2. So What? Now What? 184

3. Disruptions: Between Discourse and Practice 187

References 191