

Contents

1	Consumer and Behavior	1
1.1	What Is Consumer Behavior?	2
1.2	Why Is Knowledge About Consumer Behavior Important?	5
1.3	Explanatory Models of Consumer Behavior	6
1.3.1	Total Models of Consumer Behavior	6
1.3.2	Partial Models of Consumer Behavior	8
1.4	Overview of Consumer Behavior Topics	10
1.5	Learning Aid	11
	Further Reading	12
	References	12
2	Consumer Behavior Research	15
2.1	Object and Tasks of Consumer Behavior Research	16
2.2	Basic Research Approaches	18
2.2.1	Quantitative Research Methods	18
2.2.2	Qualitative Research Methods	19
2.2.3	Mixed Methods as a Link Between Research Approaches	20
2.3	Primary vs. Secondary Research	21
2.4	Forms of Information Retrieval	22
2.4.1	Surveys and Operationalization of Constructs	22
2.4.2	Observation of Subjects	23
2.4.3	Instrument-Based Procedures and Consumer Neuroscience	24
2.4.4	Experiments and the Proof of Causality	25
2.5	Learning Aid	28
	Further Reading	29
	References	29
3	Motivation	31
3.1	Characteristics of Motivated Action	32
3.1.1	Motives and Motivation	32
3.1.2	Pursuit of Effectivity	33
3.1.3	Goal Engagement and Goal Disengagement	34

3.2	Motivation as a Product of Person and Situation	34
3.2.1	Personal Factors	34
3.2.2	Situational Factors	35
3.3	Explaining Consumer Behavior Through Motivational Theories	36
3.3.1	Content Theories of Motivation	36
3.3.2	Process Theories of Motivation: The VIE Theory	39
3.3.3	Regulatory Focus Theory	40
3.3.4	Lewin's Field Theory	41
3.4	Motives of Consumer Behavior	42
3.4.1	Cross-Behavioral Consumer Motives	43
3.4.2	Behavior-Specific Consumer Motives	44
3.5	Measurement of Motives	45
3.6	Learning Aid	47
	Further Reading	48
	References	48
4	Emotion	51
4.1	Characteristics of Emotions	52
4.1.1	Features of Emotions	52
4.1.2	Components of an Emotion	53
4.1.3	From Consumer Emotion to Consumer Motivation	55
4.2	Emotion Theories to Explain Consumer Behavior	55
4.2.1	Biological Approaches	56
4.2.2	Cognitive Approaches	58
4.3	Making Consumer Emotions Measurable	61
4.3.1	Verbal Procedures	62
4.3.2	Instrument-Based Procedures	63
4.4	Learning Aid	63
	Further Reading	64
	References	64
5	Cognition	67
5.1	Attention and Information Selection	68
5.1.1	Attention as a Serial Bottleneck	68
5.1.2	Attention-Getting Stimuli	70
5.1.3	Processing Without Attention	72
5.2	Controlling Consumer Perception	73
5.2.1	Top-Down and Bottom-Up Perception	73
5.2.2	Gestalt Principles	74
5.3	Learning Consumer Behavior	75
5.3.1	Conditioning of Consumer Behavior	76
5.3.2	Model Learning: Learning from Other Consumers	77
5.4	Representation of Consumer Knowledge in Memory	78
5.4.1	The Classical Multi-store Model of Memory	78

5.4.2	Knowledge Representation	79
5.5	Learning Aid	80
	Further Reading	81
	References.....	82
6	Attitude	85
6.1	Attitude and Behavior	86
6.1.1	Three-Component Model of Attitude.....	86
6.1.2	Attitude-Behavior Gap.....	87
6.1.3	Compatibility	87
6.1.4	Theory of Planned Behavior	88
6.2	Measurement of Attitudes	89
6.3	Attitude Change.....	90
6.4	Implicit Attitudes	92
6.4.1	Improving Behavioral Prediction Through Implicit Attitudes.....	92
6.4.2	Measurement of Implicit Attitudes	94
6.5	Learning Aid	95
	Further Reading	96
	References.....	96
7	Decision	99
7.1	Fundamentals of Consumer Decision Making.....	100
7.1.1	Components of Decision Problems	101
7.1.2	Characteristics of the Decision-Making Situations	102
7.1.3	Models of Consumer Decision Making	102
7.2	Decision Theories	104
7.2.1	Normative Decision Theories: The Rational Choice Theory.....	104
7.2.2	Background Info: Mr. Spock vs. Homer Simpson. Or: What Is Bounded Rationality?.....	105
7.2.3	Descriptive Decision Theories: The Prospect Theory	106
7.2.4	Background Info: Uncertainty or Risk?.....	106
7.2.5	Evaluation Phase	107
7.3	Heuristics	110
7.3.1	Availability Heuristic	110
7.3.2	Representativeness Heuristic	111
7.3.3	Anchor Heuristics	112
7.4	Framing and Context Effects	112
7.5	How to Influence Consumer Decisions	113
7.5.1	Priming.....	113
7.5.2	Nudging	113
7.6	Learning Aid	114
	Further Reading	115
	References.....	115

8	Interindividual Differences	117
8.1	Market Segmentation	118
8.2	Socio-Demographic Characteristics.	119
8.2.1	Age as an Example of a Demographic Variable.	119
8.2.2	Social Status as an Example of a Socio-Economic Variable	121
8.3	Psychographic Variables	122
8.3.1	Lifestyles	122
8.3.2	Value Orientations	123
8.3.3	Cross-Cultural Differences	125
8.4	Learning Aid	127
	Further Reading	128
	References.	128
9	Social Environment	131
9.1	Reference Groups.	132
9.1.1	Forms of Reference Groups.	132
9.1.2	Influence of Reference Groups	133
9.1.3	Social Comparisons	134
9.2	Consumer Socialization	136
9.3	Standards and Conformity	137
9.4	Word-of-Mouth and Opinion Leaders	139
9.5	Social Dilemma: The Flip Side of Reference Group Influence	140
9.6	Learning Aid	141
	Further Reading	142
	References.	142
10	Physical Environment	145
10.1	Interactions Between Consumers and the Physical Environment	146
10.2	The Environmental Psychological Model	146
10.2.1	Stimulus	148
10.2.2	Personality	148
10.2.3	Intervening Variable	148
10.2.4	Behavioral Response	149
10.3	The Purchase Channel as a Physical Environment	149
10.3.1	Atmosphere of the Purchasing Channel	149
10.3.2	Spatial Breakdown of the Purchasing Channel	152
10.4	The Product as Part of the Physical Environment	156
10.5	Salespersons and Other Persons at the Point of Sale.	157
10.5.1	Characteristics of the Seller	157
10.5.2	Presence and Absence of Other Consumers.	158
10.6	Learning Aid	160
	Further Reading	160
	References.	161

11	Media Environment	163
11.1	How Media Mediate Between Consumers and Their Environment	164
11.1.1	Systematization of the Media Environment	165
11.1.2	Media of Individual and Mass Communication	165
11.2	Explanatory Approaches to Media Choice and Use	166
11.2.1	Rational Media Use	166
11.2.2	Habitualized Media Use	169
11.2.3	Emotionally Motivated Media Use	169
11.3	The Effect of the Media Environment on the Consumer	170
11.3.1	Knowledge Gap and Knowledge Illusion	170
11.3.2	Flow Experience	170
11.3.3	Social Media	172
11.4	Learning Aid	172
	Further Reading	173
	References	173
12	Changing Consumer Behavior	175
12.1	Megatrends Influencing Consumer Behavior	176
12.2	Post-materialism Hypothesis	177
12.3	Health-Conscious Consumer Behavior	178
12.4	Environmentally Conscious Consumer Behavior	179
12.5	Anti-consumption	181
12.6	Sharing	182
12.7	Learning Aid	184
	Further Reading	185
	References	185