

Contents

1	Digital Cultures	1
1.1	Decentralized and Collaborative – The Genesis of the Internet	1
1.2	A ‘Grid of Numbers’ or the ‘Digital Folding’ of Reality	7
1.3	Culture in Medial Change	10
1.3.1	Culture – An Attempt at Definition	10
1.3.2	On the Blissful People and ‘the Prejudice Is Good’	13
1.3.3	The Opening of Culture – Simmel’s Concept of the Stranger	17
1.3.4	The Internet as the Culturally Alien	20
1.3.5	Cultural Discourses in Motion – From the Pedagogy for Foreigners to Intercultural Encounters	22
1.3.6	Trans-culture – Cultural Patchwork in the Digital Age	24
1.3.7	Hyper-culture – De-localization and De-removal of Culture	29
2	Postmodern Cyberspace	35
2.1	From Modernity to Postmodernity	35
2.1.1	Modernity – Society in Transformation	36
2.1.2	Metanarrations and Postmodern Subversion	39
2.1.3	Order of Modernity and Postmodern Disorder	41
2.1.4	Postmodern Ethics as Reflective Tolerance	42
2.1.5	The Postmodern Subject, Dialogue as Postmodern Knowledge and Eurocentrism in Postmodern Epistemology	44

2.1.6	Irony as a Postmodern Protest – From Schlegel, via Spontaneous Slogans to Twitter	48
2.1.7	The Emergence of Subversive Diversity – Postmodern Protest in the Third Space	55
2.1.8	The Struggle for Publicity – From the Monologue of Television to Web 2.0-Based Dialogue	56
2.2	Web 2.0 as a Mass Medium of the Digital Age.	62
2.2.1	Epistemological Perspective on the Subject in Medial Change	64
2.2.2	The Author as an Agent of Knowledge	65
2.2.3	Rhizomorphic Cognition – Root Network Instead of the Tree Structure.	69
2.2.4	Hypertext and Memex – Structures of Non-linear Thinking.	76
2.2.5	Learning Culture in the Digital Age – Connectivism and e-Learning 2.0	79
2.2.6	Read and Write Culture and Collective Authorship as Textual Instability.	83
2.3	Cyberworld as a Space of Freedom – ‘The Assignable Self Becomes Fluid’	88
2.3.1	We Are Many! – Anonymous Collectivity	96
2.3.2	The Organless Body of the Digital Swarm.	104
2.3.3	From Subalternity to the Voice of the Digital.	109
2.3.4	‘There Is a War on’ – ‘The Clash of Civilizations’ on the Internet.	118
3	The SNS Universe of the Control Society.	123
3.1	From Postmodernism to Neoliberalism	123
3.1.1	The New Spirit of Capitalism.	123
3.1.2	Neoliberal Dominance Culture as Metanarrative.	127
3.1.3	Entrepreneurial Self as Topos of Neoliberal Metanarrative	130
3.1.4	Experiences of the Precariousness of the Entrepreneurial Self	132
3.1.5	‘Hey You There!’: Neoliberal Subjectification.	133
3.2	The Start-Up Project: Sharing Economy as an Alternative Business Culture	136
3.2.1	‘Fired by Algorithm’: Start-Ups as Drivers of Precarization.	139

3.2.2	The Cybernetic Capitalism of the Control Society	140
3.3	The SNS Universe.	145
3.4	'Internet to Go': The Mobile Internet as an Assignment of the Individual	155
3.4.1	The Culture of the Digital as Augmented Reality	157
3.4.2	Self-Tracking as an Expression of the Zeitgeist.	158
4	The University in the Digital Age as a Place of Postmodern Media Bildung.	165
4.1	The Unconditional University as a Space of Postmodern Reflection	165
4.2	Postmodern Media Bildung	173
4.2.1	From the Ego to Bildung	174
4.2.2	Empirical Opening of the Educational Theory Model.	177
4.2.3	Bildung Learning	178
4.2.4	University as an Bildung Space for Inquiry-Based Learning	180
4.2.5	From Bildung to Media Bildung	182
4.2.6	Postmodern Media Bildung – Or About the ‘Cultural Hacker’	183
	Literature.	189