

Contents

Introduction	15
Vietnamese Migration to Poland and Transfer of Resources	15
Migration as a Process Located in a Geopolitical Context	17
Mobility of Vietnamese to Poland Inside the World-Empire and the World-Economy	19
The Transfer of Resources and the Convertibility of Different Forms of Capital	21
Researching the Mobility of Vietnamese to Poland: Historical Sensitivity and Multi-Sited Ethnography	26
Incorporating the Global: Historically Sensitive Ethnographic Fieldwork	29
Providing Confidentiality: Ethical Dilemmas in Investigating Dense Social Networks	33
 1. Socialist Mobilities: Vietnamese in Poland in the Communist Era	 37
Introduction	37
Beginnings: Vietnamese Students in Poland in the 1950s	38
Mr. Hải: Successful Career of a Vietnamese Socialist Professional	42
Mrs. Lê Tần: Rebellion and Escape	44
Peak Years: Vietnamese Students in Poland in the War Years (Late 1960s–Early 1970s)	46
Introduction: Vietnamese Graduates from the “War Era” as a Core of the Community	46
Mr. Thọ: Career in Line with State Policy	48
Mr. Mừng: “Poland Forever in Our Hearts”	50
Mr. Chương: Transmitting the Bond with Poland to the Next Generation	55

Subordination to Quyết Định – Between Ba Săn Sảng and Freedom of Choice	57
Graduates from Poland as a Community: Official and Informal Forms of Social Organization	60
Decline of Existing Pattern and New Possibilities: Vietnamese Students in Poland in 1976–1989	62
Mr. Luật and Mr. Phóng: Direct and Indirect Return to Vietnam	65
Mr. Hưng and Mr. Sảng: Activists Among the Polish-Vietnamese Community	67
Vietnamese Students from the Cold War Era and Transfer of Resources	69
2. From Education to Entrepreneurship: Mobilities in the Last Years of the Cold War Era	73
Martial Arts Practitioners from the Late 1970s: The First Vietnamese Economic Niche in Poland	73
Martial Arts Schools as an Example of Institutional Transnationalism	76
From Education to Entrepreneurship: PhD Students and Apprentices from the Late 1980s	79
Tuyết Hoàng – A Voice of the Transformation-era Generation	81
Two Forms of Socio-cultural Capital and the Origins of Vietnamese Petty Trade in Poland	86
Successful Transnational Businesspeople: Mai Anh and Mr. Tượng	88
The Bitterness of University Lecturers Turned Tradeswomen: Mrs. Lan, Mrs. Khai, Mrs. Triệu	92
A Silenced Story: Mrs. Khai	93
Shame and Family Troubles: Mrs. Lan and Đạo	94
Migration and Family Breakdown: Family of Mrs. Triệu and Mr. Duy	97
Vietnamese Academics Inside the Polish-Vietnamese Community	98
Vietnamese Academics in Poland: Facilitators of Educational and Scientific Exchange	99

Vietnamese with Scholarly Backgrounds and the Transnational Dimension of Vietnamese Associations in Poland	100
3. “Big Fish” and Petty Traders: Economic Migrants from the Global Capitalism Era	105
Introduction	105
The “Big Fish”: Successful Vietnamese Entrepreneurs in the Transnational Network	106
Polish-Vietnamese Investors in Vietnam	108
Tan-Viet: The Transnational Business Activity of a Poland-based Company	112
Vietnamese “Big Fish” Operating in Poland	114
Struggle for Survival in an Enclave Economy: Vietnamese “Working People” in Poland	119
The Durability of Migration Networks and Elusiveness of the Cultural Impact of Migration: The Case of Đông Lâm Village	120
Strategies of “Getting There”: Migration Channels and Trends in Vietnamese Mobility to Poland	124
Inside the Ethnic Enclave: Selective and Adaptive Role of Migration Networks	131
Poland Seen from Inside the Ethnic Enclave: Perceptions of the Country of Residence	134
Vietnam in the Narratives of Working Vietnamese	138
“Working Vietnamese”: Looking for Opportunities in the Global Capitalism Era	143
4. Return of the Youth in the Global Capitalism Era: 1.5-generation Migrants and International Students	147
Two Distinct Categories: Vietnamese Brought Up in Poland and International Students	147
1.5-generation Migrants – General Introduction to the Concept	150
1.5-generation Returnees: Identity Dilemmas and Transmitting of Cultural Flows	151

Personal Motivations of Returnees and State Policy	151
Child Returnees: Searching for the Use of Cultural Capital Gained in Poland	152
People Who Returned on Their Own as Adults	154
Second Migration and “Floating Global Citizens”	159
1.5-generation Returnee Businesspeople: Challenges and Successes	161
International Students	166
Attempts to Cultivate “Traditional Cooperation”	168
Poland as a Gateway to the Schengen Area	170
Relations Between International Students and the Migrant Community: Possibilities Offered by the Ethnic Economy	172
Summary: Youth Returnees and Cultural Flows from Poland to Vietnam	176

5. Vietnamese Organizations in Poland: Transnational Ties, Agency, and Implementation of Sending-State Policy	179
Sources of Vietnamese Political Transnationalism	179
Social Activity and Political Engagement: Skating on Thin Ice	181
The World of Vietnamese Organizations in Poland	183
Relations Between Particular Social Circles and the Role of the Vietnamese Embassy	186
Opposition Circles	189
“Official” Vietnamese Organizations and Their Political Entanglement	195
Sending-State Strategies and Forms of Transnational Political Connections	195
Dimensions of Political Entanglement: Charity, Culture, and International Relations	198
The Activity of Official Associations Inside the Political System of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam	202
Pluralism and Unification: The Case of Two Vietnamese Pagodas	204
Entanglement and Agency: The Case of Anti-Chinese Demonstrations in Warsaw	209

Integration? Participation in the Polish Political System	215
Summary: Various Dimensions of Transnational Politics	217
Summary	219
Geopolitical Transformations and Fluctuations of Resource Transfer	219
The Prologue: The Final Demise of “Wild Capitalism”?	221
Contribution to Society: An Ever-changing Imperative	224
List of Tables	231
Bibliography	233