

CONTENTS

List of figures	ix
List of tables	xi
List of appendices	xii
List of contributors	xiii
List of abbreviations	xxi
Introduction: the foundations of Nazi musical imperialism
David Fanning and Erik Levi
SECTION 1
Musical life, resistance and destruction in occupied European capitals
17
1 Composers as critics in occupied Paris	19
Nigel Simeone
2 The Conservatoire in occupied Kiev (19 September 1941 to 6 November 1943)	33
Elena Zinkevych, translated by Michelle Assay
3 Nazi musical imperialism in occupied Poland	61
Katarzyna Naliwajek
4 Music and musical life in occupied Athens	82
Alexandros Charkiolakis

SECTION 2
Adaptation and opportunism	101
5 The Rome–Berlin Axis: musical interactions between Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany in redrawing a ‘New Order for European Culture’ Erik Levi	103
6 In search of a musical identity in the Nazi-occupied Netherlands Dario van Gammeren	122
7 Symphonic music in occupied Belgium (1940–1944): the role of ‘German-friendly’ music societies Eric Derom	140
8 Music, culture and the Church in the German-occupied USSR: the Smolensk area and other provinces Svetlana Zvereva	170
SECTION 3
Appropriations and reputations	191
9 Celebrating a Mozart anniversary in occupied Belgium: the Mozart Herdenking in Vlaanderen (1942) Marie-Hélène Benoit-Otis and Cécile Quesney	193
10 The ambiguous reception of Antonín Dvořák’s music during the Reichsprotektorat Böhmen und Mähren (The Protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia), 1939–1945 Kateřina Nová, translated by Štěpán Kaňa	211
11 Celebrating the Nordic tone – fighting for national legacy: the Grieg Centenary, 1943 Michael Custodis and Arnulf Mattes	231
SECTION 4
Between two evils	251
12 The song collector, the year of terrors and the catastrophe that followed: a life in occupied Latvia Kevin C. Karnes	253

13	The music of Čiurlionis in the context of resistance and Lithuanian national identity during the Nazi occupation (1941–1944) Vytautė Markeliūnienė	265
14	Power through music: strategies of the German occupation authorities in Estonia Kristel Pappel and Anu Kõlar	276
SECTION 5
	The limits of tolerance	301
15	Getting away with Cultural Bolshevism: the first European performance of Porgy and Bess in Copenhagen, 1943 Michael Fjeldsøe	303
16	Music criticism in the Swedish Nazi daily press: the case of Dagsposten Henrik Rosengren	319
SECTION 6
	Damaged careers	337
17	(Re)visiting the (Jewish) archive of Gideon Klein – Terezín, 1941–1944 David Fligg	339
18	Eugeniusz Morawski: life under the Nazi occupation of Warsaw Oskar Łapeta	358
SECTION 7
	Symphonies of war and resistance	375
19	Religious patriotism and grotesque ridicule: responses to Nazi oppression in Pavel Haas's unfinished war-time Symphony Martin Čurda	377
20	Paul von Klenau's Ninth Symphony: a case study Niels Krabbe	399

Contents

21 Shostakovich's 'Leningrad' Symphony: music of endurance David Fanning and Michelle Assay	418
SECTION 8
Complex and uneasy legacies	449
22 Listening in the Grey Zone Michael Beckerman	451
23 The marketing of backstories: approaches to the legacies of music composed in fraught circumstances Mirjam Frank	459
24 Nazism, music and Tyrolean identity Kurt Drexel	472
25 Bartók against the Nazis: the Italian premieres of Bluebeard's Castle (1938) and The Miraculous Mandarin (1942) Nicolò Palazzetti	489
26 Contemporary music and cultural politics in Switzerland during World War II: between neutrality and nationalism Simeon Thompson	511
Index	526