

Contents

|          |                                                                         |           |
|----------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1 | Introduction                                                     | 1  |
| 2 | IFRS 9 and the Expected Credit Loss Model                        | 5  |
| 2.1      | Why Do Banks Account for Credit Losses?                                 | 5         |
| 2.2      | “Too little, too late” Provisioning and the Transition to the ECL Model | 7         |
| 2.3      | The Main Differences Between IFRS 9 and IAS 39                          | 8         |
| 2.4      | The ECL-Model Under IFRS 9                                              | 9         |
| 2.4.1    | The Measurement of Expected Credit Losses                               | 9         |
| 2.4.2    | Three Stages of Credit Risk                                             | 10        |
| 2.4.3    | Determining the Significant Increase in Credit Risk (SICR)              | 12        |
| 2.5      | Main Implications of the ECL Model                                      | 13        |
| 3 | Covid-19 and European Banks                                      | 15 |
| 3.1      | Covid-19 at a Glance                                                    | 15        |
| 3.2      | Economic Consequences of the Pandemic                                   | 16        |
| 3.3      | Covid-19 Implications on Loan Loss Provisions Under IFRS 9              | 18        |
| 3.3.1    | Concerns Over Procyclicality                                            | 18        |
| 3.3.2    | The Use of Flexibility                                                  | 19        |
| 3.3.3    | No Mechanistic Approach                                                 | 20        |
| 3.3.4    | Short Versus Long Term Forecasts                                        | 20        |
| 3.3.5    | Transparency and Disclosure                                             | 21        |
| 3.4      | Banks’ Provisioning Practices During the Pandemic                       | 21        |
| 4 | Hypothesis Development                                           | 23 |
| 4.1      | Banks’ Incentives to Manage Earnings                                    | 23        |

---

|          |                                                 |    |
|----------|-------------------------------------------------|----|
| 4.2      | Earnings Management Under IFRS 9 .....          | 24 |
| 4.3      | Covid-19 Effect on Income Smoothing .....       | 25 |
| 5 | Descriptive Statistics .....             | 29 |
| 5.1      | Data and Sample .....                           | 29 |
| 5.2      | Descriptive Statistics .....                    | 30 |
| 6 | Research Design and Results .....        | 37 |
| 6.1      | Discretionary LLPs .....                        | 37 |
| 6.2      | Income Smoothing .....                          | 40 |
| 6.3      | Cross-country Differences .....                 | 45 |
| 6.4      | Upwards and Downwards Earnings Management ..... | 48 |
| 7 | Conclusion .....                         | 51 |
|          | Bibliography .....                       | 53 |