

Contents

1	Introduction	1
2	Open Societies as Guarantors of Life Chances	5
2.1	The Open Society and Its Non-Utopianism	5
2.2	Criticism and Conspiracy Theories	7
2.3	From the Theory of the Three Worlds to the Understanding of the Three Landscapes	10
2.4	The Ineluctability of the Temporal	12
2.5	Social Conflicts and Their Chances	18
2.6	Life Chances—of Options, Moral and Ethical Ligatures, Their Directedness Inward or Outward	21
2.7	Aspirational Ethics and Ethics of Ought	25
2.8	An Interim Conclusion on Basics and Reference Framework: Landscapes, Open Society, Conflicts and Life Chances	26
3	Morals, Moralizations, and Landscapes	29
3.1	Preliminary Remarks: Meanings of Power and Their Connections to Spaces and Landscapes	29
3.2	Moral and Moralization—Some Basic Thoughts	32
3.3	Aesthetics and Aestheticization	37
3.3.1	Theory of Sensory Perception or Knowledge	38
3.3.2	Theories of the Beautiful	39
3.3.3	Pursuit of Perfection, Clarity and Inherent Violence	43
3.3.4	Aestheticism and Romanticism	45
3.3.5	External and Internal Appropriateness, Formwork and Attitudes of Domination	48
3.3.6	Practical Rightness, Striving for Symmetry and Autocratic Social Order	50
3.4	Moralization and Landscape	52
3.5	Ethical Reflections	56
3.6	Morality, Moralizations and Landscapes—A Résumé and the Development of the Concepts of Inner- and Outer-directed Ligatures	61

4	Open and Closed Societies	65
4.1	Differences Between Open and Closed Societies-An Approach	66
4.2	Worldviews for the Closure of Societies	68
4.3	Sensitivities and the Generation of Implicit Ligatures.	78
4.4	Intended and Unintended Consequences and Implications of the Efforts to Close Societies.	82
4.5	Structural Similarities of Utopian Ideas.	85
4.6	The Way of the Open Society Between the Temptations of the Skylla of the ‘Total Publicness’ and the Charybdis of the ‘Liberation’ from Conspiracies	87
4.7	Open and Closed Societies-A Concise Résumé.	93
5	Landscapes as Consequences and Side Effects of Hostility towards the Open Society	95
5.1	Socialist Landscape	96
5.2	Fascist or National Socialist Landscape	97
5.3	Ecologicistic Landscape	98
5.4	Landscape of Religious Fundamentalism	101
5.5	Economistic Landscape	101
5.6	Landscape and Closed Society.	102
6	...and then Probably the Open Society with its Landscapes after all . .	103
6.1	Landscapes of the Open Society	103
6.2	The Maximization of Life Chances as an Expression and Condition of the Open Society.	104
6.3	The Open Society and the Limits of its Tolerance.	105
6.4	Dealing with Uncertainty	108
6.5	Life World and Ligatures	109
6.6	That is Why an Open Society!	110
6.7	The Open Society and its Differences	112
6.8	Open Society as a Framework for Avoiding Pain	113
7	The Open Society and its Life Chances—a Condensate as Conclusion	115
	References	117