

CONTENTS

List of illustrations x
Acknowledgements xiv

INTRODUCTION: A NEW STYLE FOR A NEW AGE? 1

- 1.1 Modern women 2
- 1.2 The cultural geography of Munich around 1900 5
- 1.3 Munich–Berlin 7
- 1.4 Prince Regent Luitpold 9
- 1.5 The term 'Jugendstil' 10
- 1.6 Summary of chapters 14

MAKER: MARGARETHE VON BRAUCHITSCH AND THE UNITED WORKSHOPS 25

- 1.1 Introducing Margarethe von Brauchitsch 28
- 1.2 The Vereinigte Werkstätten für Kunst im Handwerk 32
- 1.3 The Kunstsalon Littauer 1896 33
- 1.4 The 'Seventh International Art Exhibition' at the Munich Glaspalast 34
- 1.5 The United Workshops and Margarethe von Brauchitsch 36
- 1.6 A new direction for embroidery 38
- 1.7 The materiality of Margarethe von Brauchitsch's embroideries 40
- 1.8 Interiors and textiles 42
- 1.9 Machine embroidery 45
- 1.10 Embroidery and Jugendstil historiography 46
- 1.11 Was Margarethe von Brauchitsch a Jugendstil woman? 47
- 1.12 Relegated to the sidelines 49

2 ACTIVISTS: THE ELVIRA PHOTOGRAPHY STUDIO AND MUNICH FEMINIST POLITICS 57

- 2.1 August Endell's first commission 59
- 2.2 August Endell and Munich Jugendstil 61
- 2.3 The building and its façade 62
- 2.4 The interior 66
- 2.5 The patrons: Anita Augspurg and Sophia Goudstikker 69
- 2.6 Studio photography in Munich around 1900 71
- 2.7 The Photo-Studio Elvira and Munich's women's movement 74
- 2.8 The Association for Women's Interests (1894) 75
- 2.9 Going their separate ways 78
- 2.10 Jugendstil experimentation and political advocacy 80
- 2.11 Postscript 82

3 STUDENTS: EDUCATING WOMEN AT THE DEBSCHITZ SCHOOL 89

- 3.1 The Debschitz School at Dresden 91
- 3.2 Hermann Obrist (1862–1927) 93
- 3.3 Wilhelm von Debschitz (1871–1948) 95
- 3.4 The Lehr- und Versuchsatelier für Angewandte und Freie Kunst 96
- 3.5 The curriculum 98
- 3.6 Women at the Debschitz School 102
- 3.7 Art and design education in Munich around 1900 104
- 3.8 The Royal Applied Arts School (1868) 104
- 3.9 The weibliche Abteilung at the Royal School of Applied Arts (1872) 105
- 3.10 The Munich Women Artists' Association 106
- 3.11 Women at the Debschitz School 108
- 3.12 Emilie Butters (1879–1961) 110
- 3.13 Modernism's paradox 111

4 PATRON: FASHIONABLE TASTE AT ELSA BRUCKMANN'S SALON 119

- 4.1 Elsa Bruckmann (1865–1946) 121
- 4.2 Munich–Vienna: The Todesco Palais 122
- 4.3 Marrying into a publishing empire 124
- 4.4 The Bruckmanns' new headquarters 125
- 4.5 Munich–Glasgow: The dining room 126
- 4.6 Munich–London: Hermann and Anna Muthesius 130
- 4.7 Elsa Bruckmann's debut as salonnière 132
- 4.8 A brief history of salon culture 134
- 4.9 The Mackintosh dining-room-cum-salon 136
- 4.10 Salon culture and gender 137
- 4.11 Elsa Bruckmann's 'enhanced independence' 137

5 REFORMERS: DRESSING THE PART 147

- 5.1 What is Artistic Dress? 149
- 5.2 Artistic Dress and German dress reform 150
- 5.3 Dress and function 153
- 5.4 Fashion/anti-fashion 155
- 5.5 Maria van de Velde and Alfred Mohrbutter 158
- 5.6 Artistic Dress and Jugendstil interiors 159
- 5.7 Health and beauty 161
- 5.8 German life reform 162
- 5.9 Dress reform and Germany's women's movement 163
- 5.10 Jugendstil women and dress reform 164
- 5.11 Anna Muthesius and Else Oppler 165
- 5.12 Artistic Dress and the department store 167
- 5.13 The Kaufhaus Oberpollinger and the Warenhaus Hermann Tietz 169
- 5.14 Shopping 172

6 CONCLUSION 183

Bibliography 195

Index 216