

Table of Contents

|                                                                                        |    |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Abbreviations .....                                                                    | 11 |
| Conventions .....                                                                      | 13 |
| Introduction. A pivotal moment for Luther on theOld Testament and Mosaic Law ..... | 15 |
| 1. Why Deuteronomy? Understanding the Purpose of the Lectures .....                    | 21 |
| 1.1 Introduction.....                                                                  | 21 |
| 1.2 Luther and the Wittenberg Movement .....                                           | 26 |
| 1.3 Developments in Luther's Thought during the Wartburg Period .....                  | 30 |
| 1.3.1 Pre-Wartburg: On the Babylonian Captivity of the Church .....             | 32 |
| 1.3.2 Wartburg: The Misuse of the Mass .....                                    | 33 |
| 1.3.2.1 Defining Scriptural Authority.....                                             | 34 |
| 1.3.2.2 The Universal Priesthood.....                                                  | 36 |
| 1.3.2.3 Sacrifice in the Lex Christi .....                                      | 38 |
| 1.4 Luther and Karlstadt: A Comparison .....                                           | 43 |
| 1.4.1 Karlstadt's On the Removal of Images .....                                | 44 |
| 1.4.2 Exemplars or Aberrations? .....                                                  | 46 |
| 1.4.2.1 Karlstadt's Regarding Vows .....                                        | 47 |
| 1.4.2.2 Luther: Letters and Treatises from the Wartburg .....                          | 51 |
| 1.5 Conclusions and Looking toward Deuteronomy.....                                    | 54 |
| 2. What has Homer to do with Moses? Moses as Author of Scripture .....                 | 59 |
| 2.1 Introduction.....                                                                  | 59 |
| 2.2 Luther's Concept of Moses as Author in the Lectures .....                          | 62 |
| 2.2.1 Human Agency and Divine Authorship .....                                         | 64 |
| 2.2.1.1 Obstacles in Language and Translation .....                                    | 67 |
| 2.2.1.2 Moses's Agency as Author of Deuteronomy .....                                  | 70 |
| 2.2.2 The Author as Creative and Imaginative Genius.....                               | 73 |
| 2.2.3 The Mosaic Style of Writing .....                                                | 76 |
| 2.2.3.1 Constructing and Structuring the Text .....                                    | 77 |
| 2.2.3.2 Modes of Speech and their Meaning.....                                         | 80 |
| 2.2.3.3 Repetition, Remembrance, and Repetition asRhetorical Style .....           | 82 |

|                                                                                  |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 2.3 The Role of Moses as Author .....                                            | 85  |
| 2.4 Conclusion.....                                                              | 89  |
| 3. Fountain and Father of all Prophets: Moses as Prophet of Faith.....           | 91  |
| 3.1 Introduction.....                                                            | 91  |
| 3.2 Moses and the Prophet as Teacher .....                                       | 92  |
| 3.2.1 Conflicts over Prophecy in the Reformation.....                            | 97  |
| 3.2.1.1 Müntzer on Prophecy.....                                                 | 98  |
| 3.2.1.2 Luther contra Müntzer .....                                       | 101 |
| 3.2.2 Deuteronomy as Moses's Lectures .....                                      | 103 |
| 3.2.3 Moses's Pedagogical Compassion .....                                       | 105 |
| 3.3 The Teachings of Moses in Deuteronomy .....                                  | 110 |
| 3.3.1 The Role of Experience in Luther's Hermeneutic.....                        | 111 |
| 3.3.1.1 Conscience as the Location of Experience .....                           | 114 |
| 3.3.1.2 Experience as a Relational Knowledge of God .....                        | 117 |
| 3.3.1.3 The Word as the Ground for the ExperiencedRelationship with God..... | 120 |
| 3.3.2 Moses and the Experience of God in the Law .....                           | 122 |
| 3.3.2.1 Luther's Concept of the Law in Deuteronomy .....                         | 122 |
| 3.3.2.2 How Moses Teaches through the Laws.....                                  | 124 |
| 3.4 Conclusion.....                                                              | 128 |
| 4. The Full Authority of a King: Moses as Ruler of the People.....               | 131 |
| 4.1 The Divide between Prophet and Ruler in Moses.....                           | 132 |
| 4.1.1 Prophet for All, Ruler for the Jews Alone .....                            | 135 |
| 4.1.2 Luther's Restraint in Applying Moses's Laws .....                          | 138 |
| 4.1.3 The Chasm Dividing Faith and Love .....                                    | 140 |
| 4.2 The Union of Prophet and Ruler in Moses .....                                | 143 |
| 4.2.1 Moses's Place in Government .....                                          | 144 |
| 4.2.2 On Judges and Theologians.....                                             | 146 |
| 4.2.2.1 Interpreting the Law: Hermeneutics andJurisprudence.....             | 149 |
| 4.2.2.2 Interpreting the Law: Emotion and Passion.....                           | 151 |
| 4.2.3 Human Government as God's Rule .....                                       | 152 |
| 4.2.4 Just Government as Framework for the Life of Faith.....                    | 156 |
| 4.3 Conclusion.....                                                              | 158 |

|                                                                                                           |     |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 5. Teaching Moses Spiritually: Evaluating the Legacy of the Lectures .....                                | 161 |
| 5.1 Introduction .....                                                                                    | 161 |
| 5.2 Karlstadt's Activity and Developing Thought .....                                                     | 162 |
| 5.2.1 Shifts in Karlstadt's Use of the Term Gelassenheit .....                                     | 163 |
| 5.2.1.1 "Tract on the Supreme Virtue of Gelassenheit " (1520)...                                   | 163 |
| 5.2.1.2 "The Meaning of the Term Gelassen andWhere in Holy Scripture It Is Found" (1523) ..... | 165 |
| 5.2.2 Summary of Karlstadt's Development .....                                                            | 169 |
| 5.3 Luther's Responses to his Opponents .....                                                             | 170 |
| 5.3.1 Synopsis of Luther's Argument .....                                                                 | 172 |
| 5.3.2 Criticisms of Karlstadt's Exegesis .....                                                            | 175 |
| 5.3.2.1 Semantic Myopia .....                                                                             | 176 |
| 5.3.2.2 Eisegetical Daydreaming and Hypocrisy .....                                                       | 178 |
| 5.3.2.3 Constructing "his own Moses" .....                                                                | 180 |
| 5.3.3 Relating to the Law of Moses .....                                                                  | 183 |
| 5.4 Examples of the Deuteronomy Lectures' Exegetical Legacy .....                                         | 186 |
| 5.4.1 Moses as Author in the Genesis Lectures .....                                                       | 186 |
| 5.4.1.1 Moses's Authorial Intent .....                                                                    | 187 |
| 5.4.1.2 Moses's Authorial Style .....                                                                     | 189 |
| 5.4.1.3 The Synthesis of Intent and Technique .....                                                       | 194 |
| 5.5 Conclusion .....                                                                                      | 195 |
| Conclusion. How Luther regards Moses .....                                                                | 197 |
| Bibliography .....                                                                                        | 201 |
| Index of Persons .....                                                                                    | 207 |
| Index of Subjects .....                                                                                   | 209 |
| Index of Locations .....                                                                                  | 213 |