

1 Social Sciences and the Military: Preliminary Remarks	1
1.1 Theoretical Aspects	2
1.2 Military Sociology and the Study of the Military	4
References	9
2 Modern Society and the Military: Early Sociological Approaches	15
2.1 Industrialization and Modernity: Changes in the Military Institution and its Role in Modern Society	16
2.2 The Classical Social Science Incompatibility Theorem (Comte, Spencer and Tocqueville)	19
2.3 Max Weber: Military Discipline, Rationality and Domination	24
References	26
3 Political Economy and Military Organization	29
3.1 Class Structure and Military Power: From Marx and Engels to Lenin	31
3.2 Capitalism, Militarism, the Nation State and War—Selected Neo-Marxist Explanations	40
3.3 Economic Theory and Military Thinking	47
References	52
4 Democracy and the Military—Updating the Incompatibility Theorem	59
4.1 The New School of the Incompatibility Theorem	61
4.2 Social Science Critique of the New Incompatibility Theorem	63
4.3 Changing Values and Military Organization	67

4.4	Political System and Military and Defense Structures	70
4.5	Democracy and the Military	77
	References	88
5	The Issue of Acceptance and Legitimacy of Modern Armed Forces	95
5.1	Acceptance of the Military and Security Policy	97
5.2	The Need for the Military to Justify Itself in Modern Democratic Societies	101
5.3	Toward a Renaissance of the Military?	105
	References	108
6	The Concept of Modern ‘Rational’ Security Policy	111
6.1	The Theory of Deterrence as a Rational Concept of Security Policy?	113
6.2	The Rationality of Security Policy as an Antidote to the Irrationality of Violence?	120
6.3	The Military and the Paradox of Security	126
6.4	At the End of the Distance to the Other: The Omnipresence and Logic of Military Violence	129
	References	136
7	War, Peace and Military Violence: A Phenomenological Inquiry ...	141
7.1	Ecology, Totality and the Evidence of War	144
7.2	The Phenomenon of War	146
7.3	War and Being	148
7.4	Responsibility and the Foundation of Peace	151
	References	154
8	Rethinking Politics and Social Science Beyond the War Paradigm: A Sketch	159
	References	165