
Contents

Preface	VIII
General Introduction	1
Naturalism and Science – a Cosmosophic Hybrid	1
Religious Scepticism and Naturalism – Its Sources	2
The Programme – Acta et Agenda	5
Paracelsianism – Its Message, Interpreters and Critics	5
Paracelsus	8
His Life: The Main Points in Chronological Order	8
Progressive Points in Paracelsian Science and Medicine	9
Joan Baptista Van Helmont	10
His Life: The Main Points in Chronological Order	10
Progressive Points in Van Helmont's Science and Medicine	11
Sources and References	11
Supporters	13
Alexander a Suchten (?1520–?1590): Reason Turns Naturalism – Magia – to Flight	13
Petrus Severinus (1542–1602): Semina versus Elements	17
The Real World versus the World of Appearances	17
The Circular Pattern of Seminal Activity	19
Epigenesis versus Preformation	20
The Quest for the Specific and the Call for Analytic Chemistry	21
The Influence of Severinus in Paracelsianism	22
Paracelsian Neo-Hippocratism	23
Fabius Violet: A Forgotten Paracelsian	27
Violet's Paraphrasis of the Paracelsian Paragranum	27
The Task of Medicine	28
The Four Columns of Medicine	28
Man as Microcosm	29
Alchemy and Remedies Specific and Pure	29
Salt, Sulphur, Mercury	30
Water, the Universal Matrix	30
Tartar and Digestion, Salt Volatile and Salt Fixed	31
Tartar and Bile – Bile an Essential 'Internal Soap'	32
Internal Air and the True Cause of Fever	32

Uselessness of Venesection	33
The Central Position of the Stomach in Disease	33
Liver Disease, Dropsy, Calculus	33
Gout	33
Archeus and Light of Nature	34
Plague	34
Epilepsy	35
Spontaneous Generation and Worms	35
Jaundice – Colours and Colour Tests	35
Violet in the Light of Critical Paracelsianism	36
Joh. Sophronius Kozak (1602–1685): The Cosmic Monarchy of Salt	37
Paracelsus and the Paracelsists	37
The Medieval Tradition	40
Kozak's Cosmic Salinity and the Medical System	42
The Human Body Healthy and Sick	46
Kozak and Paracelsianism	50
 Critics	 55
Paracelsus Self-Contradictory?	55
Joan Baptista Van Helmont (1579–1644): Critique of Paracelsian Cosmology	60
The 'Three Firsts'	60
Boyle Endorsing Van Helmont's Criticism of the Paracelsian Principles	62
Microcosmic Symbolism Rejected: The Kabbalistic Dimension	63
Paracelsian Errors Concerning Disease	64
Against Paracelsus on Stars	64
Paracelsus' Inconsistencies	66
Final Assessment: The 'Cave' of Van Helmont	66
Gabriel Fontanus (fl. about 1650): A Galenist Contemporary to Van Helmont	69
The Astra	72
Actions in Nature and Their Causes	73
Diseases	73
Thomas Fienus (1567–1631): The Power of Imagination	76
Humoralist Pricking of the Paracelsian Bubble	76
 Moderators	 82
Tomaso Campanella (1568–1636): Paracelsianism and the Principles Proper to Guide the Naturalist	82
Daniel Sennert (1572–1637) and His Reputed Influence	86
Sennertian Points Akin to Paracelsian Doctrine	88
Dissentient Trends	90
Hermann Conring's (1606–1681) Qualified Censure	91
Francis Glisson (1597–1677): Tempered Congeniality with Paracelso-Helmontianism	94

Controversial Paracelsian Doctrines – Sources and Protoscientific
Significance	97
The Inner Man	97
Paracelsus	98
Oswald Croll (1560–1609)	99
Joan Baptista Van Helmont (1579–1644)	100
Valentin Weigel (1533–1588)	102
Inner Man in the Hunt for Knowledge	102
Sebastian Franck (1499–1542)	102
Images and the Language of Nature	103
Monoculus mysticus	105
The Numen – God’s Nod of Will and Command – in Medicine	108
The Numinous Word	110
The Numinous Sulphur	113
In Praise of Woman – The Paracelso-Helmontian Decus virginum	115
The Stomach’s Central Authority	118
Ancient Sources	118
The Stomach as the Vital Centre	121
The Stomach Itself Modestly Refusing Unjust Claims	124
Rejection of the Stomach as the Seat of the Soul	127
The Stomach in the Fable: Ruler or Primus inter pares, Consensus of the Parts	128
The Vital Principle – Decentralization (Innate – Influent)	129
The Smiling Spleen	134
J. B. Van Helmont’s ‘New Rise of Philosophy and Medicine’	136
 Paracelsianism – Aftermath in Storm and Stress 143
Boyle, Leibniz and the Paracelsian Heritage	148
Robert Boyle (1627–1691)	148
Gottfried Wilhelm von Leibniz (1646–1716)	154
 Epilogue 156
 Explanatory Notes 162
General Index 203	