

Table of Contents

Foreword	v
Introduction	1
Nicholas Richardson
Reflections of choral song in early hexameter poetry	15
Ewen Bowie
Alcman's first Partheneion and the song the Sirens sang	33
Timothy Power
Cyberchorus: Pindar's Κηληδόνες and the aura of the artificial	67
Claude Calame
Enunciative fiction and poetic performance. Choral voices in Bacchylides' epinicians	115
Richard Rawles
Eros and praise in early Greek lyric	139
André P.M.H. Lardinois
The parrhesia of young female choruses in Ancient Greece	161
Gregory Nagy
A second look at the poetics of re-enactment in Ode 13 of Bacchylides	173
David Fearn
The Ceians and their choral lyric: Athenian, epichoric and pan-Hellenic perspectives	207
Lucia Athanassaki
Song, politics, and cultural memory: Pindar's Pythian 7 and the Alcmaeonid temple of Apollo	235
Bruno Currie
Epinician choregia : funding a Pindaric chorus	269
Andrew D. Morrison
Pindar and the Aeginetan patrai : Pindar's intersecting audiences	311

Jenny Strauss Clay
Olympians 1–3: A song cycle?	337
Thomas Hubbard
The dissemination of Pindar's non-epinician choral lyric	347
Athena Kavoulaki
Choral self-awareness: on the introductory anapaests of Aeschylus' Supplikes	365
Laura A. Swift
Epinician and tragic Worlds: the case of Sophocles' Trachiniae	391
Anton Bierl
Alcman at the end of Aristophanes' Lysistrata : ritual interchorality	415
Chris Carey
Alcman: from Laconia to Alexandria	437
Bibliography	461
List of Contributors	499
Index of proper names and subjects	503
Index locorum	543