Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: History and New Media

David W. Park, Nicholas W. Jankowski, Steve Jones xi

Part I: Newness Contextualized

Chapter 1: The End of New Music? Digital Media, History, and the Idea of Attention

Devon Powers 3

Chapter 2: "All You'll Need Is a Mobile Couch": The History of Mobile Television in the United States

Noah Arceneaux 21

Chapter 3: Cutting the Cord and "Crying Socialist Wolf": Unwiring the Public and Producing the Third Place

Stephanie Ricker Schulte 37

Chapter 4: Pre-digital Virtuality: Early Modern Scholars and the Republic of Letters

Christian Thorsten Callisen and Barbara Adkins 55

Part II: New Media History and Theory

Chapter 5: Sound Studies for Historians of New Media

D. Travers Scott 75

Chapter 6: What if the Internet Did Not Speak English? New and Old Language for Studying Newer Media Technologies

Zizi Papacharissi and Elaine J. Yuan 89

Chapter 7: The Evolving Medium Is the Message: McLuhan, Medium Theory, and Cognitive Neuroscience

Teresa M. Harrison 109

Chapter 8: The Analog History of the "Digital Divide"

Dmitry Epstein 127

Chapter 9: Twenty Years of Unnecessary Forward Slashes: Critiquing Narratives of the Development of the Web

Michael Dick 145

Part III: Comparative Approaches

Chapter 10: Interface: History of a Concept, 1868–1888

Peter Schaefer 163

Chapter 11: The Long History of Digital Radio: Old Media in a New Century

Brian O'Neill 177

Chapter 12: New Media in Crises: Discursive Instability and Emergency Communication

Benjamin Peters and Deborah Lubken 193

Chapter 13: Pipeline as Network: Pneumatic Systems and the Social Order

Holly Kruse 211

Chapter 14: Telephone Media: An Old Story

Gerard Goggin 231

Part IV: New Media and Historiography

Chapter 15: Web Historiography and the Emergence of New Archival Forms

Meghan Dougherty and Steven M. Schneider 253

Chapter 16: The Evolution of Audience Labor: Appropriating Online Activities

Fernando Bermejo 267

Chapter 17: Digital History and a Register of Websites: An Old Practice with New Implications

Niels Brügger 283

Chapter 18: Placing Location-Aware Media in a History of the Virtual

Adriana de Souza e Silva and Daniel M. Sutko 299

Chapter 19: "It's Not Really Our Content": The Moving Image and Media History in the Digital Archive Age

Simon Popple 317

Contributors 333

Index 341