

Sport and the Literary Imagination

Essays in history,
literature, and sport

Jeffrey Hill

Peter Lang

Contents

Acknowledgements	9
Chapter One	The Historicity of the Text: A Historian's Reading 11
Chapter Two	'Mean Drab Times': Robin Jenkins's The Thistle and the Grail 35
Chapter Three	'Acting Big': David Storey's This Sporting Life 53
Chapter Four	'You are up against mean, small-minded men': Brian Glanville's The Rise of Gerry Logan 73
Chapter Five	Men, 'A Boy's Game', and America: Richard Ford's The Sportswriter and Philip Roth's American Pastoral 93
Chapter Six	'The Relentless Pain and Responsibility of Club Football': Nick Hornby's Fever Pitch 113
Chapter Seven	'I'll Kill 'Em All': Ring Lardner's Midge Kelly 133

Chapter Eight	‘A Perfected Model of an Imperfect World’: Thomas Keneally’s A Family Madness	155
Chapter Nine	‘You Don’t Upset the Shaygets’: Howard Jacobson’s The Mighty Walzer	173
Chapter Ten	Conclusion	193
Bibliography		203
Index		215