

Table of Contents

List of Figures	7
List of Acronyms	8
Acknowledgements	9
1. Introduction	11
1.1 Situating the Author: An Exercise in Scholarly Reflexivity	11
1.2 Situating the Text: Why Write a Book on Charles Seeger?	12
1.3 The Scope, Aim, Approach, and Content of This Study	15
1.4 Some Remarks on Central Terms and Concepts	19
1.5 Objections and Replies	27
2. Charles Seeger's Biography	33
2.1 Charles Seeger's Early Life	33
2.2 Professor of Music in Berkeley	35
2.3 The New York Years	39
2.4 Work for National and International Agencies in Washington	45
2.4.1 New Deal Agencies	45
2.4.2 The Inter-American Music Center	47
2.4.3 Scholarly Work during the Washington Years	50
2.5 Researcher in California	52
2.6 Final Years in New England	53
3. Early Meta-Musicology	55
3.1 Meta-Musicology in Berkeley	55
3.2 The Linguocentric Predicament	60
3.3 Outline of a Musicological Agenda	66
3.4 Musicological Disciplinarity	73
3.5 Musicology's Raison d'Être	75
3.6 Earlier and Contemporary Meta-Musicological Positions	77
3.6.1 Friedrich Chrysander	78
3.6.2 Guido Adler	79
3.6.3 Hugo Riemann	85
3.6.4 Waldo S. Pratt	88
3.6.5 Comparative Discussion	91
3.7 Philosophical Foundations	94
4. Meta-Musicology from the 1930s to the 1950s	105
4.1 Music and Language	107
4.2 Musicology	115

4.2.1 Science and Criticism	118
4.2.2 Systematic Musicology and Historical Musicology	122
4.2.3 Synopsis and Research	124
4.2.4 Pure Musicology and Applied Musicology	124
4.3 Contemporary Meta-Musicological Positions	127
4.3.1 Karl Gustav Fellerer	130
4.3.2 Jacques Handschin	132
4.3.3 Comparative Discussion	136
5. Toward a Unitary Field Theory for Musicology:
Late Meta-Musicology	141
5.1 Seeger and the Rise of Ethnomusicology	144
5.2 Music, Speech, and Other Modes of Communication	147
5.3 Musicology and the Musicological Juncture	172
5.4 Musicological Disciplinarity	182
5.4.1 Music Viewpoint and General Viewpoint	184
5.4.2 Systematic Orientation and Historical Orientation	184
5.4.3 Scientific Method and Critical Method	187
5.4.4 The Center, Periphery, and Neighborhood of Musicology	187
5.5 The Aims and Ends of Musicology	189
5.6 Contemporary Meta-Musicological Debates	191
5.6.1 Criticism versus Positivism	192
5.6.2 Historische Musikwissenschaft versus Systematische Musikwissenschaft	197
6. A Seegerian Philosophy of Musicology for the Twenty-First Century	207
6.1 Musicology: Basic Premises and Definitions	208
6.2 Musicology as an Ideal Discipline	213
6.3 The State of Music Studies in the Early Twenty-First Century	220
6.4 Musicological Ideals and the Real World	226
7. Utopias of Twenty-First Century Musicologies	237
7.1 Unidisciplinarity	239
7.2 Interdisciplinarity	244
7.3 Post- and Transdisciplinarity	250
8. Conclusion: Beyond Meta-Musicology	257
9. References Cited	259