

Repair, Do-It-Yourself, Use for a Longer Period of Time	1
Michael Jonas, Sebastian Nessel, and Nina Tröger
1 Introduction	2
2 Repair Cafés, Maker Spaces and Social Movements of Do-It-Yourself and Repairing	4
3 Societal Contexts, Product Life Cycles, Historical Development and the Discussion About the Prosumer	8
4 Do-It-Yourself and Repair as Components of a Circular Economy?	12
5 Do-It-Yourself, Repair and Circular Economy – Approaches and Perspectives	17
References	19
How Much Consumption Is Still In Prosumption?	23
Kai-Uwe Hellmann
1 Prosumption Everywhere! Consumption Nowhere?	23
2 What Is the Difference Between Consumption and Prosumption? The Ready-Made Status of Goods and Services	24
3 Is Leisure ('Muße') the Real Mystery of Modern Consumption?	30
References	35
Do-It-Yourself and the Order of Economy and Society	39
Reinhild Kreis
1 Introduction	39
2 Prosuming – A Supply Strategy of the Consumer Age	40
3 Disciplining and Emancipation	43
4 Market and Market Avoidance	44

5 Inclusion and Exclusion	45
6 Rethinking Consumption – With History	47
References	48
About the Way We Deal with Things	51
Thomas Vogel
1 Introduction and Problem Definition	52
2 Terminology in Dealing with Things	54
3 The Handling of Things in the Course of History	56
4 Forms and Problems of Dealing with Things Today	58
5 Aspects of a Sustainable Way of Dealing with Things	64
References	68
A Norwegian Circular Economy?	71
Thomas Edward Sutcliffe and Thomas Berker
1 Introduction	72
2 From Ethics to Visions and Imaginaries	72
3 Circular Economy: An Emerging Sociotechnical Imaginary?	74
4 Background: Norway and Future in Our Hand's Early Consumption Critique.	75
5 Case Overview	77
6 Norwegian Vanguard Visions of Circularity?	82
References	84
“Doing Value”: How Practices of Assigning Meaning Influence the Usetime of Devices.	87
Tamina Hipp and Melanie Jaeger-Erben
1 The Socio-ecological Relevance of Long Usetimes of Electronic Devices.	88
2 Theoretical Foundation	89
3 Methodological Design	92
4 The Model “Doing Value”	92
5 Possibilities of Applicability of the Model	100
6 Conclusion	105
References	106
Incentives, Guarantees, Prohibitions? Consumer Policy Measures to Pro- mote Sustainable Products and Their Support by Consumers.	111
Gerhard Paulinger and Nina Tröger
1 Introduction	112
2 Survey Method and Sample	113

3 Results	115
4 Summary and Conclusion	128
References	130
Is Sustainable Already “Normal”? Sustainability as a Consumption Compass and Self-Moralisation in Dealing with Consumer Goods	133
Franziska Weder, Renate Hübner, and Denise Voci
1 Introduction: Sustainability as a Normative Frame work	134
2 Theoretical Framework: Sustainability as a (Consumption) Compass ..	136
3 (Self-)Moralization in Dealing with Goods	137
4 Research Design: Is Sustainable (Already) “Normal”?	140
5 Consumption Practices, Sustainable Use of Goods and (Over)Moralisation. A Look at the Study Results	142
6 Conclusion: Not Quite “Normal”, But Morally Important	148
References	150
Unsettled DIY Urbanism	155
Simeon Hassemer
1 Introduction	156
2 DIY Urbanism	157
3 Research Perspective and Context	158
4 “Look there, free repair”	161
5 “By malt and hops, darning socks”	164
6 Publics by Repairing	166
7 Outlook.	170
References	171
Repair and Do-It-Yourself Urbanism: Good Practice in London and Berlin	175
Markus Piringer and Elmar Schwarzmüller
1 Introduction	176
2 Methodology	176
3 Examples from London and Berlin	177
4 Repair and DIY Urbanism Between Civil Society, State and Market Economy Influences.	181
5 Sustainability and Resilience Effects of R&DIY Practices	183
6 Enabling and Constraining Conditions for R&DIY Practices	186
7 Conclusions	192
References	193

Potentials of Alternative Consumption Models for Sustainable Development	195
Anna Rosa Vollmann, Daniela Zanini-Freitag, and Josef Hackl
1 Introduction	196
2 Obsolescence and Alternative Consumption Models in the Context of National and International Strategies	197
3 Practical Applications and Savings Potentials of Alternative Consumption Models	200
4 Perspectives from Practice: Output of the Workshop “Consumption Models in Transition” (18 November 2019)	203
5 User Perspectives from the Field for Further Policy Development	207
References	210