

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	References	5
2	Basic Game Theory Concepts	7
2.1	Normal Form	8
2.2	Dominance	8
2.3	Nash Equilibrium	10
2.4	Randomized Strategies and Second Mover Advantage	12
2.5	Extensive Form	16
2.6	Backward Induction	18
2.7	Evolutionary Game Theory	23
2.8	Mechanism Design	26
	References	29
3	Examples of Applied Game Theory	31
3.1	Price Guarantees—A Case for the Cartel Office?	31
3.2	Location Choice	35
3.3	Number Selection and Level n Rationality	39
3.4	The Tragedy of the Commons	40
3.5	Price Fixing	45
3.6	Three Goals and a Car	48
3.7	From Duel to Truel and the Advantages of Weakness	53
3.8	Focal Points	56
3.9	The Prisoner's Dilemma	59
3.10	The Repeated Prisoner's Dilemma and the Evolution of Cooperation	61
3.11	You can win with stubbornness	65

3.12	The Ultimatum Game and the Perception of Fairness	66
3.13	The 100-Euro Auction	67
	References	70
4	Purchasing Negotiations	71
4.1	The Basic Model of a Negotiation	71
4.2	Central Auction Formats	73
4.2.1	English and Japanese Auction	76
4.2.2	Dutch Auction	80
4.2.3	First-price Auction	84
4.2.4	Second-price Auction	85
4.2.5	Ausubel Auction	89
4.2.6	Average Price Auction	91
4.2.7	Multi-good Auctions	94
4.3	Further Aspects of Auction Design	100
4.3.1	The Winner's Curse	100
4.3.2	Monetization of the Advantages and Disadvantages of an Offer	103
4.3.3	Credibility of the Mechanism	104
4.3.4	(Stochastic) Reserve Prices	104
4.3.5	Duration of the Auction	105
4.3.6	Ambiguity in the English Auction	106
4.3.7	The English-Dutch Auction	108
	References	109
5	Data-based Identification of Cooperation between Suppliers	113
	References	120
6	Case Studies	121
6.1	A Multi-good Auction with Partial Monopoly Markets	121
6.2	Chilean School Meals	123
6.3	Building a Factory in Mexico	124
	References	126
7	Application and Limits of Game Theoretical Optimization	127
	Reference	129
8	Conclusion	131
9	Appendix—Derivation of Optimal Bid in a First Price Auction	133