

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements — XIII

Chapter 1: Thinking “Slantwise”: Context for the Book and Definitions of Terms — 1

- How this book contributes to De Gruyter’s series Medical and Health Humanities: Aesthetics, Analyses, Approaches — 1
- What are the medical and health humanities? — 2
- Embodied metaphors — 8
- What is psychodynamic psychotherapy? — 8
- What is alchemy? — 10
- Poetic and narrative approaches to psychotherapy — 11

Chapter 2: The Alchemical Imagination — 13

- I Only Came to Use the Phone — 14
- Here, the Father devours the Son — 15
- Consuming your own venom — 18
- Reading alchemy through different lenses — 21

Chapter 3: Metaphors of substance — 26

- Primary sources: how alchemy was recovered for psychotherapy — 26
- Symbols, signs, images, metaphors: the apparatus of therapy — 30
- Alchemy leads to science: what’s the matter with matter? — 32
- Science can strip natural phenomena of meaning through explanation — 33
- Where Jung revives alchemy as a symbol system, Hillman and others see alchemy as a system of signs — 34
- Kekulé’s vision: science’s head eats alchemy’s tail — 35
- From symbol to sign, image and metaphor: what we can learn from postmodernism — 37
- A moment on the couch — 38
- Why metaphors of substance? — 41
- James Hillman’s alchemical imagination — 42
- Towards a world soul: the Green Lion eats the Sun — 45

Chapter 4: Life distilled — 49

- Alchemy – the softening of stones — 49
- The death of alchemy and the birth of chemistry revisited — 54

Are we worth our salt? —	55
Challenging the god term “mental health” —	57
What is the matter? —	59
Paradigms lost —	62
Illustrative examples: mania as “sulphur”, depression as “lead” —	67
The literal and the metaphorical —	73
Alchemy and poetry —	77
Metaphor multiplication —	79
Update: the book’s topics —	80

Chapter 5: Fire — 82

Book-ended by fire —	82
Alchemical flames: calcination —	83
Fire loosens —	86
The world’s on fire —	88
The secret fire —	89
Norton’s menu of fires —	92
The four fires —	94
Labourers in fire —	98
The outcomes of calcination —	100
Dangers in calcination —	101
Repeated themes —	103

Chapter 6: Red Sulphur — 106

The Love of War —	106
At the volcano’s rim —	110
The violent claims of red sulphur —	111
Impulse and its discontents —	114
A fire inside —	121
Staying at the flame while embracing cool reflection —	123
Sticky black sulphur —	132

Chapter 7: Green Sulphur — 134

Fat and fecund earth —	134
Green sulphur and the child archetype —	141
Nature, red in tooth and claw, but raw green in appearance —	145
An underworld of green —	148

Chapter 8: Salt — 155

Salt’s song: fierce, compact, brilliant and cruel —	155
---	-----

Memory — 159
 Obsessions — 165
 Above and below the salt — 168
 Dosage — 170
 Salt's vigour: a secret fire — 172

Chapter 9: Transference Part I — 174

Dialectic and the chymical marriage — 174
 The resurrected body — 183
 Bodies in the Rose Garden — 190

Chapter 10: Transference Part II — 196

The sublime body – are you out of your mind? — 196
 Those women — 200
 Does Jung abandon the left-hand path? — 204
 Praxis: transference is everyday — 207

Chapter 11: Operations — 211

The return of the vile sulphurous thief — 211
 Psychoanalysis as a metaphor hoard — 213
 Operations on “substances” — 216
Coniunctio and separatio — 217
 Dissolution — 221
 Cibation — 228

References — 232

Index — 240