

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Question	4
1.2	Structure of the Book	6
	References	7
2	Societal Impact of Gift Practices	9
2.1	Marcel Mauss: "The Famous Unknown"	9
2.2	Marcel Mauss' Theory of Commitment	12
2.3	The Three Characteristics of the Binding Gift	18
	References	26
3	Research Procedure	29
3.1	Sociological Ethnography as a Research Basis	30
3.2	Field Research in Tanzania	36
3.3	Effects of "Getting Involved"	58
	References	59
4	Smallholder Life in Transition	63
4.1	The End of Seclusion	66
4.2	The Two Faces of Namtumbo	71
4.3	Traditional Farmsteads and Ways of Life in Transition	77
4.4	Nutrition from One's Own	83
4.5	Cultivation for the Market and Its Consequences	87
	References	91

5	Seeds in Namtumbo: Resource or Social Good?	93
5.1	Introduction of Commercial Seed Through the Formal Seed System	96
5.2	The Importance of the Farmer Seed System.....	108
5.3	Farmers' Seed Reproduction.	112
5.4	Seeds: A Resource for Women	120
	References	126
6	Seed Purchase via Social Networks.	129
6.1	Forms of Seed Exchange.	130
6.2	Confidence in Foreign Seed	132
6.3	Seed Giving: Emergency Insurance and Relationship Builder.	140
	References	147
7	"Those Who Sell Seeds Forget Their Humanity"	149
8	"Agriculture Is for Those Who Have No Education"	163
9	Concluding Remarks: Smallscale Farmers' Survival in a Monetized World	173
	Reference	178
	Bibliography	179