

Contents

Acknowledgments	v
Abbreviations and symbols	vii
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Goals	1
1.2 The problem	3
1.3 Proposal and structure	5
1.4 A quick guide to the examples in this book	7
2 Spanish intonational phonology	9
2.1 Autosegmental-Metrical theory and Sp_ToBI	9
2.2 Delimitation	11
2.2.1 Mapping	11
2.2.2 Boundaries	16
2.2.3 Scaling and alignment	20
2.3 Distinction	23
2.3.1 Tones and tunes	23
2.3.2 The Provocation-Response Nexus	25
2.3.3 Spanish intonational phonemes	26
2.3.4 Variable intonation on Spanish insubordinates	29
2.3.5 A melodic construction for obviousness?	34
3 Mirativity and obviousness as intonational meanings	39
3.1 Decomposing exclamatives	40
3.1.1 Exclamatives in perspective	40
3.1.2 The mirative component	47
3.2 Decomposing statements of the obvious	52
3.3 A model of meaning in dialogue	59
3.3.1 Reacting to assertions and polar questions	60
3.3.2 Beyond (dis)agreement	70
3.3.3 Including modal non-at-issue meaning	76

4 Summary and methodological implications 93

4.1 Main arguments 93

4.2 Methodological implications 96

5 Exploring corpora: Discourse particles and intonation 99

5.1 Functions of discourse particles: hombre, claro, anda, vaya . . . 102

5.2 Intonation and discourse particles 125

5.2.1 Turns with claro 128

5.2.2 Turns with hombre 147

5.2.3 Turns with anda 163

5.2.4 Turns with vaya 169

5.3 Preliminary conclusions and experimental tasks 175

6 Production experiment: Intonation only 177

6.1 Methodology 177

6.1.1 Methodological background 177

6.1.2 Materials, participants, and procedure 181

6.1.3 Measurements, annotation, and software 187

6.2 Results 189

6.3 Discussion 197

6.3.1 On neutral, mirative, and obvious declaratives 198

6.3.2 Wh-exclamatives need not be miratives 200

6.3.3 On obvious reversals 200

6.3.4 On prenuclear and final rises in obvious confirmations . 203

6.3.5 Remaining puzzles 210

7 Conclusions 219

7.1 Recapitulation 219

7.2 Open questions and outlook 221

Appendix A: Previous findings on Castilian intonation 225

Appendix B: Supplementary materials 227

Appendix C: Stimuli 231

Appendix D: Changes to the Eti_ToBI script 245

Appendix E: Test assumptions 255

References 257

Contents

Index	281
Name index	281