

Contents

Acknowledgements — V

Introduction — 1

1 Time: Temporal Impermanence and History — 13

- 1.1 Perpetuity of the Present and the Presentness of the Past:
Time and Temporalities in Mr. Potter and See Now Then — 13

2 Text: Narrative Encounters with the Past — 31

- 2.1 Writing Personal and Collective Memory:
Repetition in Mr. Potter — 32
- 2.2 Writing with and through Other Texts:
Intertextual Engagements with History — 48
- 2.3 Writing between and across Genres:
Negotiations of Subject and Object, Self and Other — 76

3 Images: Visual Engagements with History — 101

- 3.1 Making and Unmaking Representations:
Intradiegetic Images in Annie John and Lucy — 102
- 3.2 A Photo Album of History:
Ekphrasis in My Garden (Book): — 127
- 3.3 Photographic Product(ion)s of History: The Portraits of
The Autobiography of My Mother and Mr. Potter — 142

4 Bodies: Embodied Enactments of History — 158

- 4.1 Transgressions of Gender:
The “Unruly” Female Body, Grotesquerie, and Odors — 161
- 4.2 Scripted Sexualities:
Revisions of the Female Body Through Sexual Practices — 181

Epilogue: Permanent Impermanence — 214

Works Cited — 217

Index — 231