

Table of Contents

- Acknowledgments..... 9
 - List of illustrations 10
 - Abbreviations 10
- O. Introduction..... 11
 - 0.1 The Venetian setting..... 11
 - 0.2 Before Sozzini and the “Italian Heretics” 13
 - 0.3 From Paduan medical milieux to pro-Judaism:
the specificities of the Venetian Radical Reformation 20
 - 0.4 The sources: a few preliminary observations 22
- 1. The landscape of dissent..... 27
 - 1.1 Embracing the (Radical) Reformation in sixteenth-century Venice 27
 - 1.1.1 The good citizen and the heterodox self 27
 - 1.1.2 Becoming Anabaptist 33
 - 1.1.3 Some figures 40
 - 1.2 Places 45
 - 1.2.1 The German Fondaco..... 45
 - 1.2.2 Gardens, woods, universities, churches..... 48
 - 1.2.3 Private houses 52
 - 1.2.4 The collegia vicentina..... 56
 - 1.2.5 Prisons 60
 - 1.3 Punishing the Unknown 65
 - 1.3.1 The danger of galleys..... 65
 - 1.3.2 Rome and Venice: the two Inquisitions 66
 - 1.3.3 From fine to death 68
 - 1.3.4 Informers and inquisitors 73
 - 1.3.5 The phantom defendants 77
 - 1.4 The organisation of a new church 79
 - 1.4.1 Points of reference: people and texts..... 79
 - 1.4.2 A new lifestyle..... 84
 - 1.4.3 The Carnival and its masks 87
 - 1.4.4 The preparation of the council..... 91

2. In search of doctrinal uniformity.....	95
2.1 The meeting of 1550	95
2.1.1 The Venetian confessions of faith: Anabaptism and Antitrinitarianism	95
2.1.2 Winners and losers	109
2.1.3 The Inquisition's perspective: barriers and ambiguity.....	111
2.2 The Italian way	116
2.2.1 The classic revisited: adult baptism.....	116
2.2.2 Venice and Moravia	121
2.2.3 The Lord's Supper and the imitatio Christi	124
2.2.4 Sin and Hell	128
2.3 Italian Anabaptists: isolated minority or international Reformers?	132
2.3.1 The mobility factor	132
2.3.2 A community of brothers and sisters	136
3. Radical Reformers at the University of Padua	139
3.1 Students and teachers	139
3.1.1 Medical students at the Facultas artistarum	139
3.1.2 Cadaver dissections and conversations about religion.....	145
3.1.3 The diaspora of Paduan physicians.....	149
3.2 The Soul, the blood, and the Trinity.....	153
3.2.1 A medical theory of Incarnation	153
3.2.2 Servet and Padua	156
3.2.3 Agostino Doni and Servet.....	160
3.2.4 Constantino Tessera's doctrine on the soul	166
3.3 The sleeping souls	167
3.3.1 A forgotten doctrine	167
3.3.2 Mortalism and materialism	169
3.3.3 A literal or metaphorical meaning?	173
3.3.4 The Fifth Lateran Council	175
3.3.5 Venice and its surroundings	180
3.3.6 European echoes	182
4. Entangled religions	189
4.1 Germany, the Iberian Peninsula, Naples: Judaism and the Radical Reformation outside Venice	189
4.1.1 Judaism and Anabaptism in the German-speaking territories...	190
4.1.2 Servet and Judaism	192
4.1.3 Juan de Valdés and the Naples-Venice connection.....	194
4.2 Entangled religions in a Renaissance Republic	198
4.2.1 Jews, conversos , radical Reformers.....	198

4.2.2 The cloistered nuns of Udine and their Jewish-Antitrinitarian utopia	204
4.2.3 The fascination of the Kabbalah	206
4.2.4 The University of Padua as a contact zone between Jews and radical Reformers	209
4.3 Venice, Poland and Transylvania	211
4.3.1 Continuing the theme	211
4.3.2 The supremacy of the Old Testament.....	214
4.4 Antitrinitarianism and Islam: from Venice to the East.....	216
4.4.1 Venetian ‘heresy’ and Muslim erudition.....	216
4.4.2 Prisoners and translators	221
5. Epilogue	223
5.1 The defeat	223
5.2 The Venetian Radical Reformation, Socinianism, and the Enlightenment	228
Bibliography	235
Manuscript sources	235
Printed sources	236
Secondary literature	242
Index	267