

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Starting Observations: Developments of Family and Non-Family Enterprises	2
1.2	Overarching Research Project: Growth and Downfall of Family Businesses	5
1.3	Research Objectives: Long-Term Analysis of German Enterprises	6
1.4	Structure of the Dissertation: From Concept to Results	7
2	Literature, Underlying Concepts and Research Gaps	11
2.1	Theoretical Perspectives: The Development of Enterprises	11
2.1.1	Conditions of Survival and Failure: Company and Industry Characteristics	12
2.1.2	Growth, Stagnation and Decline: Research Focuses on Success Developments	16
2.2	Current State: Historical Sciences and Family Business Research	19
2.2.1	Historical Perspective: The Long-Term Development of (Family) Enterprises	20
2.2.2	Family Business Research: An Emerging Research Area	23
2.3	Research Gap: Quantitative Long-Term Analysis of Family and Non-Family Enterprises	47
3	Methodology and Research Questions	51
3.1	Business, Economy and History: The Historical Method	52

3.2	History-Informed Approach: Family Business Research and Historical Sciences	55
3.3	Quantitative Analysis, Sample and Contextualization: Considering the Broader Picture	58
3.4	Applied Framework: Tracking Ownership, Operations and Solvency	61
3.5	Applied Timeframe: 60 Years and Two Generations	69
3.6	Research Questions: Development of the Largest Enterprises in Germany	72
3.7	Data Collection and Categorization: Comprehensive 7-Step Approach	73
3.7.1	Dataset I: The (Dis)Continuity of the 250 Largest Enterprises of 1958	75
3.7.2	Dataset II: The (Dis)Continuity of the 250 Largest Enterprises of 2018	94
3.7.3	Interlude: The Unknown Voting Rights of the Siemens Family	113
4	History of the German Industrial Landscape between 1958 and 2018	117
4.1	Economic Developments: Overall Growth with Structural Changes	117
4.2	Political Developments: From Nations to a Union	128
4.3	Legal Developments: Increasing Transparency and Competition	130
4.4	Summary: The Continuous and Dynamic Development of the German Economy	135
5	Quantitative Analysis: The 250 Largest Enterprises of 1958 and 2018	137
5.1	Enterprise Size Ranges and Modeled Growth Rates: Growing Bigger—Fast	138
5.2	Types of Companies: Reshuffling the Composition with One Constant	142
5.3	Legal Forms: Using the Broader Selection of Available Legal Forms	150
5.4	Listings: Declining Importance of the Capital Market	154
5.5	Age: Getting Older and More Evenly Distributed	158
5.6	Industry: The Rise and Fall of Entire Industries	164

5.7	Company Insights: From Large to Small and from Old to Young	170
5.7.1	The 25 Largest and Smallest Enterprises: The Increasing Strength of Large Companies	170
5.7.2	The 25 Oldest and Youngest Enterprises: Spanning 289 and 349 Years	184
5.8	Family-Owned Enterprises: Gaining Importance Among the Largest Enterprises	198
5.9	Reappearers and New Joiners: Nearly a Quarter Remains Among the 250 Largest Enterprises	215
5.10	Summary: Despite Massive Industrial Changes Several Enterprises Remain One of the 250 Largest Enterprises over 60 Years	225
6	Long-term Analysis I: The 250 Largest Enterprises of 1958	227
6.1	Overview of the Enterprises' Developments from 1958 to 2018	228
6.1.1	Survival and Downfall: Failure is the Normal	228
6.1.2	Age: Get Old to Become Older	236
6.1.3	Size: Liability of Relative Smallness	240
6.1.4	Ownership Continuity and Discontinuity: Continuity as an Exception	242
6.1.5	Industry: A Company's Destiny	249
6.1.6	Growth, Stagnation and Decline: The Broad Range to Survive	252
6.1.7	Family-Owned Enterprises: Applied Long-Term Orientation	262
6.1.8	Reappearers and Additional Survivors: The Big Difference in Development	271
6.2	Patterns of the Enterprises' Developments to 2018	280
7	Long-term Analysis II: The 250 Largest Enterprises of 2018	283
7.1	Overview of the Enterprises' Developments back to 1958	283
7.1.1	New Joiners & Reappearers: Two Worlds Collide	284
7.1.2	Age: The Two Exceptions of an Average Age of a Hundred Years	287
7.1.3	Size: The Extraordinary Case of the Reappearers	289
7.1.4	Ownership Continuity and Discontinuity: Family Firms' Long-Term Orientation	289

7.1.5	Growth: Accelerated to Become One of the Largest Enterprises of 2018	293
7.1.6	Family-Owned Enterprises: Pass the Long-Term Orientation	294
7.2	Patterns of the Enterprises' Developments to 2018	297
8	Propositions for the Future Development of Enterprises	299
8.1	Overarching Patterns: Downfall is the Average Long-Term Development	299
8.2	Practical Implications: Choose Wisely	303
9	Conclusion	305
9.1	Results on the Research Question	305
9.2	Future Research	308
9.3	Concluding Summary	310
	References	313