

Contents

1	How Do I Use This Book?	1
1.1	A Brief Introduction.	1
1.2	Basic Idea of This Book.	2
1.3	How to use this book	3
	References.	4
2	Popular Myths	5
2.1	You Can't Say What Good Teaching is	6
2.2	You Can Say What Good Teaching is, but it Differs Depending on the Subject.	6
2.3	Good Teaching Does Not Work if the Conditions are Bad	7
2.4	It is Not My Task as a Teacher to Deal with the Students in My Lessons	7
2.5	The Teacher Personality: Good Teaching Can Either Be Learned or Not	7
2.6	The Special Teaching Method (Insert Name Here) is the only Right One.	8
2.7	I Have to Change the Teaching Method or Do Something Original Every 15–20 min	8
2.8	The Teaching Format (Lecture, Seminar, Exercise) Determines My Teaching.	9
2.9	One Must Take into Account Learning Types	9
2.10	Teacher-Centered Vs. Student-Centered Teaching: Teacher-Centered Learning is Generally Bad, Student-Centeredness is Generally Good	10
2.11	Surface vs. Deep Learning: Deep Learning is Always Better	11
2.12	Teaching Evaluation Results Say Nothing	11
2.13	Good Teaching Doesn't Matter, a Student Needs to Have the Right Personality	12

2.14	Students Just Want to be “Entertained” and Do Nothing Themselves	12
2.15	Students Must Take Notes, Otherwise They Will Not Learn Anything	13
2.16	Students Must Fear the Teacher, Otherwise They Will Have No Respect.	13
2.17	The Students are Getting Dumber	14
2.18	Expert Opinion Beats Empiricism: “In My Experience..., However, It Is so That ...”	14
2.19	Good Researchers are Also Always Good Teachers	14
	References.	15
3	What is Good University Teaching and What Can I Do as a Teacher?	19
3.1	Definition of Good University Teaching	20
3.2	Dimensions of Good University Teaching: What Can I Influence as a Teacher?	21
3.2.1	How Big is My Influence on the Result?	23
3.2.2	Individual Dimensions of Good University Teaching	23
3.3	The Effectiveness of Good University Teaching	27
3.4	Most Effective Aspects of Good University Teaching.	39
3.5	Practice Examples—In General.	40
	References.	41
4	Lesson Planning	45
4.1	Clarify Framework Conditions	47
4.2	Set Learning Goals.	49
4.3	Selecting Content Based on Learning Goals	51
4.4	Choose Teaching Methods (Adapted to Learning Level)	53
4.5	Choose Examination Methods (Adapted to Learning Level)	53
4.6	Create Course Schedule.	56
4.7	Plan Individual Sessions	56
4.8	Practical Examples of Lesson Planning.	57
4.8.1	A Practical Example from the Humanities	57
4.8.2	A Practical Example from the Social Sciences	66
4.8.3	A Practical Example form the Natural Sciences	73
	References.	80
5	Teaching: Presentation Skills	83
5.1	Basics of Communication	84
5.2	Nonverbal and Paraverbal Communication	85
5.3	Rhetoric and Presentation	88
5.3.1	Argumentative Figures.	90
5.3.2	Specifics of Presentations.	90

5.4	Initial and Final Phases in Teaching	91
5.5	Practical Examples for Presentation Skills	92
	References.	94
6	Teaching: Managing Professional Relationships	97
6.1	Friendliness, Respect and Authenticity	98
6.2	Helpfulness and Availability	99
6.3	Fairness, Commitment and Consistency	99
6.4	Your Role as a Teacher.	100
6.5	Dealing with Difficult Students	102
6.6	Practical Examples for Professional Relationship Management	105
	References.	108
7	Teaching: Activating Students	109
7.1	Theoretical Learning Basics of Activation in University Teaching	110
7.2	Activation Does Not Automatically Lead to Learning	110
7.3	Input Methods—What Promotes Learning, What Endangers Learning Success?	111
7.4	Activating Methods—What Promotes Learning, What Endangers Learning Outcomes?	113
7.5	Asking Questions and Using Them Skillfully	113
7.6	Leading Conversations and Discussions with Questions.	115
7.7	A Good Didactic Concept is More Important than Activating Teaching Methods	117
7.8	Teaching Learning Strategies and Self-Management Skills	118
7.9	Practical Examples for Activating Students.	119
	References.	121
8	Teaching: Motivating Students	123
8.1	The Teachers’s Enthusiasm	124
8.2	Intrinsic vs. Extrinsic Motivation (Including Interest).	125
8.3	Achievement, Power and Affiliation Motivation	127
8.4	Goal Orientations.	128
8.5	Rubicon Model of Action Phases.	130
8.6	Practical Examples for Motivating Students	132
	References.	133
9	Teaching: Didactic Subtleties	137
9.1	Adaptive Teaching	138
9.2	Intercultural Teaching	138
9.3	Plagiarism: Forms, Identification, Handling and Prevention.	143
9.4	Excursions as a Specific Teaching Format.	145
9.5	Details of Teaching Design	152

9.6	Practice Examples of Didactic Subtleties	154
	References.	154
10	Teaching Outside the Classroom: Blended Learning and E-Learning	157
10.1	Blended Learning instead of E-Learning.	158
10.2	Possible E-Learning Tools	159
10.3	Optimal Blended-Learning Formats	161
10.4	The Concept of the Flipped or Inverted-Classroom.	162
10.5	Practice Examples for Blended Learning and E-Learning	165
	References.	166
11	Teaching Outside the Classroom: Consultation and Supervision	169
11.1	Consultation by Teachers.	170
11.1.1	Consultation Process and Conversation Guide	170
11.1.2	Teaching Consultant Competencies.	170
11.2	Supervision by Instructors	172
11.3	Mentoring by Teachers.	173
11.4	Examples of Counseling and Support for Students	173
	References.	175
12	Testing Students and Evaluating Teaching Quality	177
12.1	Feedback—Basic Constant of Good Teaching for Testing and Evaluating	178
12.1.1	Criteria for Good Feedback	178
12.2	Examinations	180
12.2.1	Purpose and Forms: Why and How Do I Test?	180
12.2.2	Quality criteria and reference standards: How do I assess exams correctly?	183
12.2.3	Grading Errors: How Do I Grade Correctly?.	187
12.2.4	Quality of Individual Examination Forms: What Am I Testing?	189
12.3	Evaluation - in Particular, Teaching Evaluations	190
12.3.1	Teaching Evaluation: What Can I Measure?	190
12.3.2	Distortion of Results in Teaching Evaluations: Does It Measure Correctly?	194
12.4	Carrying Out and Interpreting Teaching Evaluations Yourself	195
12.4.1	Preparing the Teaching Evaluation	195
12.4.2	Carrying Out and Evaluating the Teaching Evaluation	200
12.4.3	Interpretation and Consequences of the Teaching Evaluation	201
12.5	Alternative Evaluation Methods for Teaching Evaluations	205
12.6	Practical Examples for Teaching, Testing and Evaluating.	206
	References.	208

13	Reflecting on and Innovating Teaching	215
13.1	Processes of Reflection	216
13.2	Aspects of University Teaching Worthy of Reflection	217
13.3	Innovative University Teaching	218
13.4	Examples of Reflecting and Innovating Teaching Practices	219
	References	221
14	Method Collection	223
14.1	Cognitive Techniques	227
14.1.1	Input	227
14.1.2	Individual Work	227
14.1.3	Group Work	228
14.1.4	Jigsaw / Group Puzzle	230
14.1.5	Project Work	231
14.1.6	Experiment	232
14.1.7	Brainstorming	233
14.1.8	Mind-Mapping	234
14.1.9	Guest Lectures	236
14.1.10	Case Studies	237
14.1.11	Lucky Dip	238
14.1.12	Text Work: Reading and Discussing Texts	239
14.1.13	Scenario Method	240
14.2	Feedback Techniques	242
14.2.1	Asking Questions	242
14.2.2	Flash	243
14.2.3	One-Minute-Paper	244
14.2.4	Teaching Evaluations	244
14.2.5	Target	246
14.2.6	Inquiry into Expectation, Interest and Prior Knowledge ...	247
14.3	Simulation Methods	248
14.3.1	Business Game	248
14.3.2	Problem-based Learning	250
14.3.3	Simulation	251
14.4	Behavioral Modeling	252
14.4.1	Role-playing	252
14.4.2	Fishbowl	254
14.5	Moderation Techniques	255
14.5.1	Card Query	256
14.5.2	Multi-point Query	256
14.5.3	Action Plan	257
14.5.4	Open Space	258
14.5.5	Discussion	260
14.5.6	Expert Q & A	262

14.5.7	Pyramid Method or Atoms-molecules	262
14.6	Presentation Techniques.	263
14.6.1	Presentations	263
14.6.2	Impulse Presentations	265
14.6.3	Poster Presentation.	266
14.7	Methods for Counseling and Supervision	267
14.7.1	Counseling Guides.	268
14.7.2	Supervision Protocols	269
14.7.3	Supervision Contracts	270
14.8	Icebreaker and Relaxation Methods.	273
14.8.1	Introduction Board.	273
14.8.2	Cooperation Agreements	274
14.8.3	Partner Interview	275
14.8.4	Student Line-up	275
14.8.5	Tropical Storm	276
14.8.6	Compound Words.	277
	References.	278
	Goodbyes and Innovations for the Author of this Book	281
	References	283