

Contents

Table of Abbreviations — XI

Introduction — XV

I Theoretical Epistemology— 1

1 Kierkegaard's Theoretical Epistemology — 3

- 1.1 Introduction — 3
- 1.2 Kierkegaard's "Theoretical Epistemology" — 6
 - 1.2.1 Knowledge in a Strict and Necessary (Formal) Sense — 8
 - 1.2.2 Knowledge in a Loose Sense — 11
- 1.3 Conclusion — 29

2 The Epistemology of Alvin Plantinga — 31

- 2.1 Introduction — 31
- 2.2 The Relation between Plantinga's View and Other Contemporaries' Views on Warrant — 32
 - 2.2.1 Foundationalism and Coherentism; the Main Argument of Foundationalism — 32
 - 2.2.2 Plantinga's Critique of Coherentism — 33
 - 2.2.3 Classical Foundationalism and Its Rejection by Plantinga — 35
 - 2.2.4 Reidian Foundationalism — 38
 - 2.2.5 Evidentialism — 40
- 2.3 Plantinga's Notion of Warrant — 44
 - 2.3.1 Proper Function — 44
 - 2.3.2 Appropriate Cognitive Environment — 45
 - 2.3.3 Degrees of Warrant — 45
 - 2.3.4 The Design Plan — 46
 - 2.3.5 Reliability — 47
 - 2.3.6 Plantinga's Notion of Warrant — 48
- 2.4 Plantinga's Externalism — 48
 - 2.4.1 The Gettier Problems — 48
 - 2.4.2 A Critique of Plantinga's Solution to Gettier Problems — 51
 - 2.4.3 Plantinga's Reply — 51
- 2.5 Conclusion — 54

3 Comparison between Plantinga's and Kierkegaard's Theoretical Epistemologies — 57

II Knowledge about the Existence of God — 65

4 Kierkegaard and Knowledge about the Existence of God — 67

- 4.1 Kierkegaard and the Subjective Knowledge — 67
- 4.1.1 The Knowledge that God Exists; the Subjective Immanent Metaphysical Knowledge — 67
- 4.2 The Knowledge that God Exists and Its Relationship to Ethics — 70
- 4.3 Inwardness and Gaining the Belief in God — 72
- 4.4 How Inwardness Works: Triggering Factors for Gaining the Belief in God — 73
- 4.4.1 Schulz: Existential Despair as a Triggering Factor — 74
- 4.4.2 Roberts and Evans: the Normativity of Ethics as a Triggering Factor — 75
- 4.4.3 Triggering Factors: Externalist and Internalist Epistemological Justification — 79
- 4.5 Conclusion: Desirable Consequences of the Idea of an “Inwardly Conditioned” Religious Knowledge — 82

5 Plantinga and the Knowledge about the Existence of God — 85

- 5.1 Proper Basicity with Respect to Justification — 85
- 5.1.1 The Classical Foundationalist View of Knowledge — 85
- 5.1.2 The Critique of the Classical Foundationalist and of Modified Foundationalist Views on Belief in the Existence of God — 87
- 5.1.3 Plantinga’s Inductive Criterion for Proper Basicity — 89
- 5.1.4 Answering the Great Pumpkin Objection; Properly Basic Beliefs as Grounded Beliefs — 94
- 5.1.5 Philip Quinn’s Critique of Plantinga’s Inductive Criterion for Proper Basicity — 98
- 5.2 Proper Basicity with Respect to Warrant — 102
- 5.3 Conclusion — 104

6 Comparison of Plantinga’s and Kierkegaard’s Views Regarding the Knowledge about the Existence of God — 105

III Arguments for God’s Existence — 109

7 Climacus and the Arguments for God’s Existence — 111

- 7.1 Introduction — 111
- 7.2 The First General Objection — 114
- 7.3 The Second General Objection — 117
- 7.4 The Critique of the Ontological Argument — 120

7.5	The Critique of the Teleological Argument —	124
7.6	The Ethico-Religious Critique of the Arguments —	129
7.7	Conclusion —	130
8	Plantinga's Arguments for the Existence of God —	133
8.1	Introduction —	133
8.2	The Perspective on Natural Theology from the Early Works —	137
8.2.1	The Cosmological Argument —	139
8.2.2	The Ontological Argument —	142
8.2.3	The Teleological Argument —	143
8.3	The Ontological Argument during Plantinga's Middle Works —	145
8.4	The Perspective on Natural Theology Extracted from the Later Works —	148
8.4.1	The Ontological (or Metaphysical) Arguments: the Arguments from Intentionality, from Collections, from Natural Numbers and from Concepts —	150
8.4.2	The Argument from Physical Constants —	154
8.4.3	The Naive Teleological Argument —	157
8.4.4	The Argument from the Confluence of Proper Function and Reliability —	158
8.4.5	The Moral Argument —	160
8.4.6	The Argument from Evil —	161
8.4.7	C.S. Lewis' Argument from "Nostalgia" —	162
8.4.8	Arguments from Miracles —	163
8.4.9	The Argument from the Meaning of Life —	169
8.5	Conclusion —	171
9	Comparison between Kierkegaard's and Plantinga's Perspectives on the Arguments for the Existence of God —	173

IV Knowledge about the Truth of Christianity — 177

10	Kierkegaard and the Knowledge about the Truth of Christianity —	179
10.1	Introduction —	179
10.2	From Subjectivity to Christian Truth; the Relationship between the What and the How of Faith —	180
10.3	Subjectivity and Truth —	180
10.4	The Content of the Saving Truth Associated with the Peak of Inwardness —	184
10.4.1	The Human Untruth and the Divine Teacher's Deliverance —	184
10.4.2	The Divine Teacher's Love and His Incognito —	187

10.4.3	The Definition of Faith: Highest Inwardness and Absolute Paradox —	189
10.5	Conclusion —	192
11	Plantinga and the Knowledge about the Truth of Christianity —	199
11.1	Introduction —	199
11.2	The Notion of Sin —	200
11.3	The Extended Aquinas/Calvin Model —	203
11.3.1	Internalist Legitimacy —	205
11.3.2	Externalist Legitimacy —	207
11.3.3	Is Faith a “Leap in the Dark”? —	210
11.4	Objections to the Model and Plantinga’s Replies: Critical Observations —	213
11.4.1	Linda Zagzebski’s Objections —	213
11.4.2	Richard Swinburne’s Objections —	216
11.4.3	The Barth-Pannenberg Dispute: William Craig’s Critical Observations —	222
11.5	Conclusion —	229
12	Kierkegaard and the Rationality of the Transition between the Competing Interpretations of Existence —	231
12.1	Hannay, MacIntyre and the Challenge to the Classical View on the Transition —	231
12.2	Piety’s and Marino’s Defense of the Rationality of Transition —	235
12.2.1	Marilyn Piety —	235
12.2.2	Gordon Marino’s Account of the Transition —	241
12.3	MacIntyre’s Answer to Piety’s and Marino’s Defences of the Rationality of the Transition(s) —	243
12.4	Evans’ Externalist Model —	244
12.4.1	“Virtue” Epistemology —	244
12.4.2	Anticipations of the Externalist Model —	245
12.4.3	Classical Foundationalism versus Kierkegaard’s Epistemology —	248
12.4.4	Kierkegaard and the Externalist Epistemology —	250
12.5	Concluding Evaluation of the Debate —	251
13	Comparison between Plantinga’s and Kierkegaard’s Views on the Knowledge of Christianity —	255

Conclusions — 263

Bibliography — 285

Index — 299