Foreword by James V. McGlynn, S.J.	v
Preface	vii
PART ONE: THE PHILOSOPHY OF BEING
I. INTRODUCTION
1. Purposes and general ways of knowing	3
2. Kinds of theoretical knowledge	6
3. Characteristics of scientific knowledge	7
4. Why should I study philosophy?	12
5. The philosophy of being and the other parts of philosophy	15
6. Philosophy and religion	17
7. Thomistic philosophy	21
8. Definitions	22
9. Readings	25
II. THE MEANING OF "BEING"
10. Various senses of the word real	30
11. Phenomenalism and the meaning of being	32
12. Materialism and the meaning of being	33
13. Essentialism and the meaning of being	37
14. Existentialism and the meaning of being	41
15. The Thomistic answer to the question, "What is it to be real?"	42
16. The primitive notion of being	47
17. The metaphysical knowledge of being	50
18. The first principles of knowledge	54

20. Summary of the argument 21. Readings III. THE ANALOGY OF BEING: FIRST APPROACH 22. The fact of knowledge in common 23. Univocation and its basis 24. Is being a universal? 25. "Being" is common to many 26. The formal structure of analogy 27. Analogy of individual beings 28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of substance 40. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 41. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation 117 47. Readings	19. Definitions	57
21. Readings III. THE ANALOGY OF BEING: FIRST APPROACH 22. The fact of knowledge in common 23. Univocation and its basis 24. Is being a universal? 25. "Being" is common to many 26. The formal structure of analogy 27. Analogy of individual beings 28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 77. IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings 90. V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation	20. Summary of the argument	57
22. The fact of knowledge in common 23. Univocation and its basis 24. Is being a universal? 25. "Being" is common to many 26. The formal structure of analogy 27. Analogy of individual beings 28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 77. IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition of substance 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation		58
23. Univocation and its basis 24. Is being a universal? 25. "Being" is common to many 26. The formal structure of analogy 27. Analogy of individual beings 28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 77 TV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation	III. THE ANALOGY OF BEING: FIRST APPROACH
23. Univocation and its basis 24. Is being a universal? 25. "Being" is common to many 26. The formal structure of analogy 27. Analogy of individual beings 28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 77 IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation 117	22. The fact of knowledge in common	64
24. Is being a universal? 25. "Being" is common to many 26. The formal structure of analogy 27. Analogy of individual beings 28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 77 IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings 90 V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation	 	65
25. "Being" is common to many 26. The formal structure of analogy 27. Analogy of individual beings 28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 77 IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings 90 V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation		65
26. The formal structure of analogy 27. Analogy of individual beings 28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 77 IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation		67
27. Analogy of individual beings 28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 77. IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation		69
28. Person and thing as beings 29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 77 IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings 90 V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation		71
29. Definitions 30. Summary 31. Readings 76 31. Readings 77 IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings 90 V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation	28. Person and thing as beings	73
31. Readings 77 IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings 90 V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation		76
IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION 32. The problem of change 80 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 82 34. The correct way to talk about change 85 35. A changing thing is composed 87 36. Definitions 89 37. Summary 90 38. Readings 90 V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 93 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 98 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 100 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 103 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 111 44. The agent and his activity 114 45. Definitions 116	30. Summary	76
32. The problem of change 33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation	31. Readings	77
33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 41. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation	IV. BECOMING—CHANGE—MOTION
33. Identity, distinction, and difference 34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation	32. The problem of change	80
34. The correct way to talk about change 35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings 90 V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation		82
35. A changing thing is composed 36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation		85
36. Definitions 37. Summary 38. Readings W. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation		87
38. Readings 90 V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 116 46. Summary of the argumentation		89
V. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF CHANGE AND BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 46. Summary of the argumentation	37. Summary	90
BEING: I. IN PARTICULAR 39. Accidental change and the substance-accident composition of being 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 16. Summary of the argumentation	38. Readings	90 sition of being 93 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 98 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 100 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 103 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 111 44. The agent and his activity 114 45. Definitions 116 46. Summary of the argumentation 117
sition of being 93 40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy 98 41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 100 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 103 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 111 44. The agent and his activity 114 45. Definitions 116 46. Summary of the argumentation 117	39. Accidental change and the substance-accident compo-
41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 100 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 103 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 111 44. The agent and his activity 114 45. Definitions 116 46. Summary of the argumentation 117		93
41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition of substance 100 42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 103 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 111 44. The agent and his activity 114 45. Definitions 116 46. Summary of the argumentation 117	40. Substance and accident as beings by analogy	98
42. Individuals in a species and matter-form composition 43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 111 44. The agent and his activity 114 45. Definitions 116 46. Summary of the argumentation 117	41. Substantial change and the matter-form composition	100
43. That-which-is and the act of existing (esse) 44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 16. Summary of the argumentation 117
44. The agent and his activity 45. Definitions 116 46. Summary of the argumentation 117
45. Definitions 116 46. Summary of the argumentation 117
46. Summary of the argumentation 117	•	116
,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,
	47. Readings	118

VI. THE INTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF BEING: II. AS ANALOGOUSLY ONE

48. Comparison of the three sets of intrinsic principles	124
49. Theorems of act and potency. I: Act and potency are distinct in their order	127
50. What is the potency for activity?	128
51. Theorem II: Act and potency are not strictly beings
but principles of being	131
52. Theorem III: Act, in the order in which it is act, is unlimited in itself and limited by the potency in which it is received	132
53. Theorem IV: Act can be known by itself, potency only through act	136
54. Theorem V: Act and potency divide being in general	137
55. Concluding remarks about act and potency	137
56. Exercise	141
57. Readings	141
VII. THE EXTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF BEING: I. THE AGENT
50 Deinsiales of shapes	144
58. Principles of change 59. Causal factors	144
60. The causality of the agent, or efficient cause	147
61. Types of agents: univocal and equivocal causes	152
62. Types of agents: principal and instrumental causes	154
63. The exemplar cause	155
64. The theorem of causality	156
65. The analogy of causality	162
66. Definitions	164
67. Proofs	167
68. Readings	167
WIII THE EVENINGS PRINCIPLES OF
VIII. THE EXTRINSIC PRINCIPLES OF BEING: II. THE GOAL OF ACTION
69. The goal of action	171
70. Orientation in being	179
71. Chance	180
72. Definitions	183

73. Proof	184
74. Readings	184
IX. THE TRANSCENDENTALS
75. Being is a transcendental	187
76. Possibles	190
77. Beings of reason and pure intelligibilities	192
78. The transcendental "one"	194
79. Being-in-itself and being-for-another	196
80. The transcendental "true"	197
81. The transcendental "good"	202
82. Definitions	210
83. Proofs	211
84. Readings	211
PART TWO: NATURAL THEOLOGY
X. THE EXISTENCE OF GOD
1. The nature and characteristics of natural theology	219
2. State of the question	219
3. Explanation of terms	219
4. The proof	222
5. Readings	224
6. Selected passage from St. Thomas Aquinas	224
7. The nature and validity of a posteriori demonstration	225
8. Statement of the question	225
9. Explanation of terms	225
10. Readings	228
XI. PROOFS FOR THE EXISTENCE OF GOD
1. The first way: proof from the existence of motion	229
2. Statement of the problem	229
3. The solution	229
4. Whatever is changed is changed by another	230
5. In things that are changed by another an infinite regress is impossible	231
6. This first unmoved mover is pure act or God	233
7. Answering the objections	233
8. Summary of the first way	236

9	The second way: proof from the existence of efficient causes	239
). Statement of the problem	239
13	1. The solution: step one: efficient causes essentially and accidentally ordered	240
12	2. Step two: general characteristics of a per se ordered series of efficient causes	241
13	3. Step three: special characteristics of a series of per se ordered efficient causes	243
14	. Step four: Why there cannot be an infinite regress in per se ordered efficient causes	246
	6. Answering the objections	246
	6. Summary of the second way	249
17	7. The third way: proof from the existence of corruptible beings	252
	3. Prenote	252
	P. Solution	252
). Answering the objections	259
	. Summary of the third way	263
22	2. The fourth way: proof of God's existence from grades of perfection in beings	265
	3. Statement of the problem	265
	J. Solution	266
	The proof of the fourth way	271
	6. Some added considerations	274
	7. Answering the objections	275
	3. Summary of the fourth way	277
29	7. The fifth way: the proof of the existence of God from the finalized activity of natural beings	280
30). Prenote	280
3	1. The problem of the fifth way	281
33	2. Solution	283
3	3. Answering the objections	288
34	1. Summary of the fifth way	295
3:	5. A general proof for God's existence	299
30	5. Readings	303
XII. T	HE NATURE OF GOD
	I. Man's knowledge of the divine nature	304
	2. The problem of knowing the nature of God	304
•	. The problem of knowing the nature of God	707

3. Solution to the problem	305
4. Statement of the question	305
5. Explanation of terms	306
6. Adversaries	307
7. Proofs for our position	308
8. Readings	312
9. The problem of naming God	312
10. Can God be named?	312
11. Solution to the problem	312
12. Statement of the question	313
13. Explanation of terms	313
14. The proof	315
15. Readings	317
XIII. THE PERFECTIONS OF GOD
1. Prenote	318
2. Divisions of the divine perfections	318
3. The divine perfection of simplicity	320
4. God is absolutely simple	321
5. Solution	321
6. General proof	322
7. Answering the objections	323
8. God is completely perfect	324
9. Proof	324
10. How the perfections of creatures pre-exist in God	324
11. Prenote	324
12. Solution	325
13. Second solution	326
14. Answering the objections	331
15. God is infinite and supremely good	331
16. Prenote	331
17. Is the being of God really infinite or without limit?	332
18. Solution	332
19. Answering the objections	333
20. Is God supremely good?	334
21. How the divine perfections are distinct from the divine essence and from each other	336
22. Does the plurality of meanings that the divine attributes have exist only in our intellect or also in God?	338
23. Solution	338

24. The opinion of Avicenna and Maimonides	341
25. The opinion of the Pseudo-Denis and St. Anselm	342
26. Reconciliation of these opinions	343
27. Answering the difficulties	345
28. Summary	346
29. Readings	349
30. The omnipresence, immutability, and eternity of Go	d 349
31. Readings	351
XIV. GOD'S KNOWLEDGE AND WILL
1. God's knowledge of himself and other things	352
2. Statement concerning God's knowledge	352
3. Explanation of terms	353
4. The proof	354
5. Readings	356
6. The perfection of will in God	356
7. Statement concerning God's will	356
8. Explanation of terms	357
9. The proof	358
10. Readings	361
XV. GOD'S CREATION AND PROVIDENCE
1. The manner in which the world comes from God	362
2. Statement concerning creation	363
3. Explanation of terms	363
4. The proof	364
5. Readings	365
6. Divine providence	365
7. Statement concerning God's providence	366
8. Explanation of terms	367
9. The proof	367
10. Readings	368
XVI. GOD AS THE END OF MAN
1. Defining some terms	369
2. Applying these terms to God	369
3. Conclusion	372
4. Readings	372
Index	375