

Contents

Acknowledgements — VII

A Note on Transliteration — VIII

Map of Afghanistan and Timeline — IX

List of Figures — XII

1 Introduction — 1

- 1.1. Political Activism at Kabul University and Historiography on Afghanistan — 2
- 1.2 Political Activism at Kabul University and the Global Cold War — 9
- 1.3 Sources — 18
- 1.4 Oral History — 20
- 1.5 Navigating a Verbal Minefield — 23
- 1.6 Plan of the Book — 26

1964–1978

2 Kabul University in the 1960s — 31

- 2.1 The Pride of Being a Student — 32
- 2.2 An Island of Modernity — 39
- 2.3 On the Streets, Not in the Classrooms — 47

3 From Collective Protest to Violence on Campus — 59

- 3.1 “Death to the Shah” — 62
- 3.2 Political Organizations Take Shape — 78
- 3.3 Fists, Sticks, Stones, and Knives — 90

4 Competing Ideas of Progress — 103

- 4.1 “Why Are Western Countries so Developed” — 104
- 4.2 A Struggle for Independence — 109
- 4.3 The Promise of Revolutionary Change — 119

1978–1992

5 Hope and Disappointment in the Early 1980s — 133

5.1 Bombs on the Palace — 135

5.2 “A Beautiful Time for Women” — 142

5.3 Purges and Fear — 149

6 Protest in Times of Purges — 157

6.1 Leaflets on the Walls — 159

6.2 “The Russians Have to Leave!” — 167

6.3 Beyond Ideologies — 180

7 “It Was a Good Time and a Very Sad Time, Back Then” — 193

7.1 Living a Student Life — 195

7.2 The Changing Character of Kabul University — 199

7.3 Civil War on Campus — 204

8 Conclusion — 211

Sources and Bibliography — 219

Index — 233