

Contents

Preface — VII

Acknowledgments — IX

Abbreviations used — XI

Glossing conventions — XIII

1 Introduction — 1

- 1.1 Empirical scope and main goals — 1
- 1.2 Event structures — 2
- 1.3 The nature of root meaning — 6
 - 1.3.1 The Bifurcation Thesis for Roots — 7
 - 1.3.2 Grammatically relevant ontologies of roots — 8
 - 1.3.3 The logical types of roots — 11
 - 1.3.4 Interim summary — 12
 - 1.3.5 Structural components of meaning in roots — 13
 - 1.3.6 Free distribution approach to roots — 14
 - 1.3.7 Interim summary — 16
- 1.4 Framework and assumptions — 16
 - 1.4.1 Resultative constructions — 18
 - 1.4.2 Sublexical modification — 20
- 1.5 Outline of the study — 24
 - 1.5.1 A note on data — 26

2 Verbal roots and (im)possible verb meanings — 27

- 2.1 Introduction — 27
- 2.2 Manner/Result Complementarity — 28
 - 2.2.1 Manner and result as (non)scalar changes — 31
- 2.3 Against Manner/Result Complementarity — 34
 - 2.3.1 Mateu & Acedo-Matellán (2012) — 35
 - 2.3.2 Beavers & Koontz-Garboden (2012) — 36
 - 2.3.3 A response: Rappaport Hovav (2017) — 37
 - 2.3.4 A complementarity in the event structure — 38
 - 2.3.5 Interim summary — 39
- 2.4 Intentional actions induce manner properties — 40
 - 2.4.1 Result entailments — 42

- 2.4.2 Manner entailments — 49
- 2.4.3 Further evidence: manner-of-stealing verbs — 58
- 2.4.4 The decomposition of murder and manner-of-stealing verbs — 63
- 2.5 Final remarks on manner and result — 68
- 2.6 Conclusion — 70

3 Verbal roots and agent entailments — 72

- 3.1 Introduction — 72
- 3.2 Severing the external argument — 74
- 3.2.1 Flavors of Voice and v — 76
- 3.3 Templatic meanings in the semantics of roots — 80
- 3.3.1 Entailments of change in the semantics of roots — 83
- 3.3.2 Interim summary — 96
- 3.3.3 Agent entailments in the semantics of roots — 97
- 3.3.4 Interim summary — 106
- 3.4 Agent entailments and (in)direct causation — 106
- 3.4.1 Lexical causative verbs and periphrastic causatives — 107
- 3.4.2 Against the constraint on direct causation — 110
- 3.4.3 Two classes of lexical causative verbs — 113
- 3.5 Unsevering the external argument — 120
- 3.5.1 Subjectless presuppositions — 121
- 3.5.2 Agents in the semantics of roots — 123
- 3.5.3 Towards a typology of roots — 128
- 3.6 Conclusion — 130

4 Verbal roots and their syntactic distribution — 132

- 4.1 Introduction — 132
- 4.2 The syntactic distribution of verbal roots — 134
- 4.3 Manner and result as root ontologies — 137
- 4.4 Revisiting the elasticity of verb meaning — 143
- 4.4.1 Nonselected object constructions — 143
- 4.4.2 Unaccusative change of location predicates — 145
- 4.4.3 Creation predicates — 147
- 4.4.4 Interim summary — 148
- 4.4.5 Result verbs and event modifiers — 149
- 4.5 Root distribution is not unconstrained — 150
- 4.5.1 Apparent counterexamples — 152
- 4.5.2 Embick's (2009) approach to event structure — 154
- 4.6 A more nuanced view of root distribution — 156
- 4.6.1 The semantics of roots and root distribution — 157

4.6.2 Beyond event modifiers and complements — 160

4.7 Conclusion — 165

5 Conclusion — 168

Bibliography — 175

Index — 189