

CONTENTS

|                                                                         |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Abbreviations                                                    | xi  |
| INTRODUCTION                                                     |     |
| To Philosophize Is to Think Freely, to Learn to Live Freely             | 1   |
| 1 The Beloved Hometown                                           | 15  |
| Growing Up in Stuttgart, 1770–1788                               |     |
| 2 A Student at the Protestant Seminary                           | 31  |
| Tübingen, 1788–1793                                              |     |
| 3 A Private Tutor of a Patrician Family                          | 55  |
| Switzerland, 1793–1796                                           |     |
| 4 From a Mosaic of Fragments to the Cornerstone of a System      | 82  |
| Frankfurt, 1797–1800                                             |     |
| 5 The Birth of Absolute Idealism                                 | 109 |
| Jena 1801–1807                                                   |     |
| 6 The Political Journalist                                       | 180 |
| Bamberg, 1807–1808                                               |     |
| 7 The First Humanistic Gymnasium and the Science of Logic | 190 |
| Nuremberg, 1808–1816                                             |     |
| 8 The Owl of Minerva on the Neckar                               | 247 |
| Heidelberg, 1816–1818                                            |     |
| 9 The “Great Center”                                             | 265 |
| Becoming World-Famous in Berlin, 1818–1831                       |     |
| Obituaries                                                       | 381 |
| Acknowledgments                                                  | 383 |
| Notes                                                            | 387 |
| Index of Names                                                   | 457 |