

List of Contents

Foreword	VII
Acknowledgments.....	IX
List of Contents	XI
List of Figures	XV
List of Tables	XVII
Abbreviations	XIX
Symbols.....	XXI

1 Introduction 1

1.1 Motivation	1
1.1.1 Inadequacy of Performance Measures	1
1.1.2 Inconsistencies and Deficiencies of Prior Empirical Studies.....	5
1.2 Research Objectives	8
1.3 Structure of the Study.....	10

2 Fundamentals 13

2.1 Value-Based Management (VBM).....	14
2.1.1 Emergence of VBM Responding to Increasing Shareholders' Pressure	14
2.1.2 Maximization of Shareholder Value as an Overall Objective	16
2.1.3 Critical Success Factors for VBM Implementation	22
2.1.4 Validity of VBM Systems within Sustainability and Stakeholder Models.....	25
2.2 Value-Based Performance Measures	28

2.2.1	Unsuitability of Traditional Performance Measures for VBM Scopes.....	29
2.2.2	Introduction to Common Value-Based Performance Measures	30
2.2.3	Evaluation of Metrics Favoring Residual Income Variants.....	39
2.2.4	Widespread Familiarity of Managers with Value-Based Metrics.....	42
2.2.5	Multiple Uses of Value-Based Metrics	45
2.2.6	VBM Systems Effectively Addressing Management Decisions.....	53
2.3	The Economic Value Added (EVA [®]) Concept.....	56
2.3.1	EVA Computation Going Far beyond Subtraction of Equity Costs	56
2.3.2	Accuracy and Complexity of EVA Definition in Practice.....	62
2.3.3	EVA Applying across Sectors, Business Units, and Management Functions	64
2.3.4	EVA Perceived as Panacea While Improvements Are Still Needed.....	70
2.4	Summary	72

3 Development of New Value-Based Metrics 75

3.1	Distortions of Residual Income Caused by Accounting Depreciation.....	75
3.1.1	Definition and Relevance of Age Bias.....	75
3.1.2	Pervasiveness of Age Bias under Varying Cases.....	77
3.2	Adjustment Techniques Using Figurative Economic Depreciation.....	84
3.2.1	Available Metrics Replacing Book Depreciation	84
3.2.2	Insufficient Advantages of Depreciation-Adjusted Metrics	96
3.3	Introduction of New Value-Based Metrics Using Economic Depreciation.....	98
3.3.1	Definition of CRI and CEVA as New Depreciation-Adjusted Metrics.....	98
3.3.2	Advantages of CRI and CEVA versus Common VBM Metrics....	104
3.4	Summary	105

4 Applied Methods for the Empirical Research 107

4.1	Review of Prior Value-Relevance Research	107
-----	--	-----

4.1.1	Empirical Studies Relating Accounting Performances to Market Value.....	108
4.1.2	Empirical Studies Relating Accounting Performances to Stock Returns.....	113
4.1.3	Gaps in Previous Studies.....	119
4.2	Development of the Empirical Study Design.....	122
4.2.1	Research Hypotheses.....	122
4.2.2	Regression Models Relating Performance to Market Value and Returns.....	124
4.2.3	Relative and Incremental Information Content Tests	131
4.2.4	Sample Selection Process Gaining Panel Data	134
4.2.5	Definition of Independent and Dependent Variables.....	137
4.3	Summary	149
5	Results.....	151
5.1	Case Study.....	151
5.1.1	Accounting-Based Measures of Shareholder Value Creation.....	152
5.1.2	Market-Based Measures of Shareholder Value Creation.....	169
5.1.3	Examination of Interrelationships	171
5.2	Regression Analysis	173
5.2.1	Descriptive and Correlations Statistics	173
5.2.2	Relative Information Content: Apparent Predominance of Earnings.....	175
5.2.3	Incremental Information Content: Importance of Earnings' Accruals.....	183
5.3	Summary	188
6	Discussion	191
6.1	Implications.....	191
6.2	Limitations.....	192
6.3	Outlook.....	193
	References	195
	Appendix	209